British Troops on Egyptian Firing Line

British soldiers fire rifles from rooftops in Ismailia during action against Egyptian police Jan. 25. A British embassy spokesman said Jan. 29 that a secret military court of inquiry has finished its investigation into the fatal shooting of Sister Anthony, an American-born nun killed during an Anglo-Egyptian clash at Ismailia Jan. 19. Court findings were withheld as British authorities studied the photo. The British and Egyptians each had accused the other of killing the nun during the battle. (AP Photo by radio from London).

Falls View Hotel Lost at Ellenville; 25 Are Driven Out

Early Morning Blaze Is Discovered by Wife of Owner; Damage $100,000

Ellenville firemen battling in zero weather early this morning were unable to save the Falls View Hotel just outside the village of Ellenville and it was completely destroyed.

Twenty-five guests in the hotel were aroused and left the building without incident. There were 19 adults and six children guests in the main house when the fire was discovered at about 3:15 o'clock this morning.

Located on the Leurenkill road not far from The Nevele, the proprietor Benjamin Slutsky, had just completed considerable renovation of the kitchen in the hotel yesterday. It was reported the fire apparently started in the kitchen area.

Mrs. Slutsky was aroused by smoke and notified her husband. When he left the building and went to the rear he observed flames and immediately re-entered the hotel and notified the guests to vacate. Within a few minutes after the guests had left the place was enveloped in flames. The guests were temporarily taken care of in another house which stands across the road from the Falls View Hotel.

The Falls View House, owned by Benjamin Slutsky, an uncle of Ben J. Slutsky, was of stucco construction and had a capacity of approximately 200.

Ellenville firemen responded to the alarm and on arrival a second alarm was sounded bringing additional men and equipment to the scene. However the fire had gained such headway that it was impossible to save the structure and it was totally destroyed. All that remained today was the chimney and foundation.

Fire Chief Benjamin Litchford said the four-story, 50-room stucco-board building was a total loss and tentatively estimated damage at $100,000.

To Enter Primary

Washington, Jan. 30 (AP)—Senator Robert A. Taft decided today to challenge Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower for the Republican presidential nomination in the New Hampshire primary March 11. Taft, in a statement, said he had not asked his supporters to enter the New Hampshire primary—first in the nation—but they had done so. "Win, lose or draw, I, therefore, feel I should permit the preference vote to be taken in New Hampshire," the Ohio senator said.

Reports Flaming Object

A woman resident of North Manor avenue reported to local police at 6:47 p. m. yesterday that she had been "a flaming object falling from the sky." The object, she said, seemed to pass over the area between Manor and Clinton avenues and toward the latter street. It came from a southwesterly direction, she said, and quickly disappeared. She was sitting at the dinner table at the time, and could not say whether it was a meteor although she thought it might have been one.

Thursday Is Final Day on Car Licenses

Edgar J. Dempsey, deputy county clerk in charge of the Motor Vehicle Bureau office on Main street, reminded motorists today that the deadline for posting 1952 license tabs on the rear plate of cars is only a day off. After midnight Thursday it will be illegal to drive a motor car with only the 1951 tag.

As the deadline approached there was a last minute rush at the Ulster County Motor Bureau office on Main street and a long line of customers formed early.

Cold Eases Flood Crests Along Ohio

More Than 10,000 Persons Are Homeless—Level Not Dangerous

Portsmouth, O., Jan. 30 (AP)—The Ohio river flood crest—a winter-time sneak that drove upwards of 10,000 from their homes—swept to the doorstep of Gallipolis, O., today. But, its Sunday punch was about gone.

Bitter cold, the killer of floods, cut the crest to somewhat less damaging depths.

The river rose slowly—if at all—at Roller Dam, 10 miles upstream from Gallipolis itself where the 7 a. m. reading was 53.7 feet. Flood stage is 50 feet. It was expected to crest at 53.8 feet at 11 a. m. (E.S.T.) before pouring southward to Portsmouth. The U. S. Weather Bureau at Cincinnati indicated previous crest estimates probably would stand, or would be cut slightly. This would bring the Portsmouth crest to 58 feet and the Cincinnati crest to 59 feet.

Not Excessive Damage

In neither case would the flood damage be excessive. Only a few warehouses would be inundated at Cincinnati and about 250 rural families—unprotected by Portsmouth's 77-foot flood wall—would be made refugees.

The winter cold, which pinned down into ice many tons of tributary flood waters and helped speed the flood situation, caused other discomforts, however. Instead of the customary digging out of mud and hosing down of floors, returning refugees upstream found themselves with the job of chopping away ice.

To the hazards of high water, transportation found itself slipping and sliding over glare ice on saturated roads.

Gallipolis actually stands on a hill and watches the flood go by. The city is on some of the highest ground in the 1,283-mile length of the Ohio river.

Stands at 53.2 Feet

At Maysville, Ky., the river stood at 53.2 feet, up the same amount and topping a 50-foot flood stage.

The Cincinnati level was 52.1 feet, just over the 52-foot flood stage, at 9 a. m.

The mercury dropped to eight degrees at Cincinnati, similar to temperatures that plagued and blessed the entire flood area.

The river crested yesterday at Marietta, O., where about one-third of the business district and scattered residential areas were inundated.

A few miles downstream from Marietta at Parkersburg, W. Va., the river crested at 44.36 feet, more than eight feet above flood stage, late yesterday afternoon.

At both Marietta and Parkersburg the water began falling and work toward normal living began.

Soon after midnight the river's rise came to a near-halt at Pomeroy and Middleport, O., some 35 miles below Parkersburg. The entire business section of Pomeroy had been invaded by the flood waters but most homes in the area escaped.

The unofficial refugee toll in Central Ohio was 2,000 to 3,000. Ten persons are dead or missing.

Probe Hits McGrath in Dual Ways

Personal and Official Activities Might Be Scrutinized by House Investigators

Was Offered Job

Patterson Turned Down Office Month Ago, Is Report

Washington, Jan. 30 (AP)—House investigators began clearing the ground today for an investigation that may go deep into the personal and official activities of Attorney General McGrath.

Matters proposed for inquiry already include McGrath's reputed race track interests, and his one-time role of $15,000-a-year trustee of a Rhode Island trust connected with the Textile firm of Textron, Inc.

Investigators also have been presented with charges of "unwarranted" interference with federal grand juries and of prosecution failures or delays by the Justice Department.

McGrath and the department became the subject of an investigation by the House Judiciary Committee yesterday in what was reported to be a unanimous action of the 16 Democrat and 13 Republican members.

The action was taken on a resolution by Rep. Keating (R-N.Y.) authorizing a seven-man subcommittee to put the congressional spotlight on the Justice Department.

It places McGrath in the dual role of investigator and investigator.

Trouble Getting Started

McGrath is having trouble getting an investigation of his own started. This one was ordered by President Truman and is aimed at corruption or influence peddling in any government agency or department.

The attorney general, it was learned, has received setbacks in his efforts to get a special prosecutor to direct the probe.

Democrats, however, regarded the scope of the investigation. Before the resolution came to a vote, Republicans agreed to a change in wording stating the inquiry must be "limited to specific charges based upon credible evidence."

Republicans, however, regarded this as "only what any responsible committee of Congress" would direct, Keating told newsmen.

The Justice Department immediately issued a statement promising "cooperation."

McGrath sought to go before it to present his view of the proposed investigation, but he was refused a hearing.

Post Was Offered

New York, Jan. 30 (AP)—Herbert Bayard Swope, an intimate friend of the late Robert P. Patterson, says President Truman last month offered the post of U. S. Attorney General to Patterson.

But Swope adds that the former secretary of war refused the offer to replace J. Howard McGrath, whose department was ordered investigated yesterday by a Congressional committee.

Swope, who served as a consultant to the secretary of war at a time when Patterson was undersecretary of war, presided last night at a memorial meeting for Patterson at Freedom House, a private organization.

Patterson, a former federal judge as well as war secretary, was killed in a New Jersey plane crash last week. He was a Republican.

After the meeting, Swope said the offer to Patterson was made when President Truman asked Federal Judge Thomas F. Murphy (Continued on Page 5, Col. 1)

Eisenhower Oklahoma Move Grows

Taft Backers Waging Desperate Fight for Area They Thought Was Secure

Story Has Points

Represents First Show of Delegate Strength for General

By JACK BELL

Oklahoma City, Jan. 30 (AP)—Enthusiasts for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower appear to have cracked wide open the almost solid wall of Oklahoma Republican support for Senator Robert A. Taft's bid for the GOP presidential nomination.

Starting almost from scratch with Eisenhower's announcement several weeks ago that he is a Republican and available for the nomination, the general's hastily organized backers have the Taft forces fighting a desperate battle in an area they believed safely within their hands.

To Select Delegation

This state's Republicans will begin tomorrow, at a district meeting in Durant, the selection of their 16-vote delegation to the July Chicago National convention. After other district meetings, they will complete the delegation choice at a state convention here Feb. 11, first of its kind in the nation.

Whereas a month ago it had been generally assumed here the delegation would go to Chicago unopposed but at least 12 to 4 behind Taft, competent observers now say they expect the vote to be about equally divided between Taft and Eisenhower.

C. E. Sullivan, veteran political expert for the Daily Oklahoman, said he looks for such a result, with the possibility that most of the Oklahoma group would jump quickly to Eisenhower if it appeared the general was "going places" in the convention.

C. E. Barnes, attorney and former GOP state chairman who is ramrodding the Eisenhower drive, predicted to this reporter the general will get the majority of the delegation out of the district and state conventions.

Story Is Significant

To this reporter, who has traveled thousands of miles and talked to politicians from most of the western states, the Oklahoma story is significant in that it seems to represent the first actual translation into delegate strength of the reputed Eisenhower popularity among rank and file Republicans.

If it is indicative of a trend, it could be bad news for Taft.

Friends of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, including Rep. Hugh D. Scott (R-Pa.), played a leading part in organizing the Eisenhower drive here. Dewey got the state's convention votes in 1948.

Eisenhower in the west, similar Eisenhower drives have not yet reached the stage where the general's friends can say with confidence they are making inroads into the strength Taft built up with his extraordinarily early and effective campaign for vote pledges.

The Eisenhower people have apparent control in some states, such as Oregon, but they seemingly have not denied Taft strength materially in others; such as Washington.

Control Is Grabbed

Upsetting all the advance dope, the Eisenhower people grabbed control of the Oklahoma county convention here last week. This virtually assumed them of two delegates from the Fifth Congressional District, in a meeting to be held later.

City's Fire Loss Doubles, Chief's Report Discloses

No Commitment, Says Churchill

Thus He Speaks About UN Punitive Action—Call Made for Vote

London, Jan. 30 (AP)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill said today Britain had no "formal commitment" to join with the United States in any punitive action against China if a Korean truce is broken.

Churchill told the House of Commons that the whole question was discussed among Britain, the United States and other governments with forces in Korea before he went to visit President Truman.

"It was agreed that clearly a very serious situation would arise in such an event and various contingencies had been examined without any definite or formal commitment being entered into," said Churchill.

Churchill said "no change was made in this situation while we were in the United States."

"In fact," he added, "the matter did not figure to any large extent in our discussions."

But Churchill also cautioned the House:

"It is not wise when a war is going on to tell everything always to everybody, including the enemy. They might, I think, sometimes be left something to guess about."

Vote Is Demanded

London, Jan. 30 (AP)—Labor members of Parliament demanded a vote of no confidence in the Conservative government today for proposing curbs on Britain's costly social services as part of a drastic economy program.

The motion was filed in the House of Commons just before the start of a two-day debate on Spartan proposals by R. A. Butler, chancellor of the exchequer, to put the country on its feet financially.

The motion was in the form of an amendment to one by Prime Minister Churchill asking House approval of the Butler plan.

If the Laborites should put their motion across, Churchill would have to resign and ask for a new national election. But the (Continued on Page 5, Col. 6)

Three Conflagrations Push Total Up $50,000—Total $108,038

Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy's annual report to the Board of Fire Commissioners yesterday showed a 1951 fire loss in the city of $108,038.29.

This is $50,317.95 over the 1950 loss because of such damaging fires as that in School No. 5 where the loss was about $41,000, the Greenkill avenue cabinet works where the damage was estimated at $28,000 and the Deyo cider mill where the loss was about $20,000.

Included in the total fire loss, the report said, is a loss paid on small fires occurring mostly in the homes, (the fire department not called). This amounted to $3,959.20. The fire loss per capita was $3.07.

Budget Passage Predicted Without Major Changes

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 29 (AP)—Economy blocs today planned a final tax-cut onslaught against Governor Dewey's proposed record state budget of $1,094,000,000—but they were not hopeful.

Republican legislative sources predicted that New York's first billion-dollar budget would be approved without major alterations, despite huffing and puffing at a public hearing in the capitol Feb. 13.

to finance capital construction on a pay-as-you-build basis.

He termed the plan impractical and predicted that contractors would be hampered by limiting appropriations to cover certain work in a given budget year.

The Democrats were preparing a detailed attack on the Dewey budget and were expected to propose some budget "reforms."

In submitting the $1,094,000,000 budget to the legislature, Dewey said he was "glad" to report that tax increases were not necessary, despite a 94-million dollar jump in appropriations.

Raiders Withdraw

Heavy Resistance Forces Allies to Retreat From Hill Position

Munsan, Korea, Jan. 30 (AP)—Communist negotiators in a double reversal today agreed to the Allies rotating 25,000 troops a month during an armistice and said Chinese would join in administering the demilitarized zone.

The Reds balked, however, at restraints on moving their troops secretly into threatening concentrations during an armistice.

Previously the Communists had agreed to rotating only 5,000 UN troops. The Allies are asking for 75,000 a month.

Yesterday the Reds indicated the Chinese would take no part in civil administration of the northern half of a buffer zone during an armistice. Today they reversed it.

All these actions were taken by staff officers working their way slowly through an 18-page Allied draft of a plan for supervising an armistice.

Object to Proposals

The Reds objected to two security proposals:

1. The Red both sides refrain from concentrating troops and guns in a manner to threaten the other side.
2. Both sides to report weekly the exact location of all major ground, naval and air units.

Premier Gives His Views, Says His Country Belongs
in Pact

Cairo, Egypt, Jan. 30 (AP)—An Egyptian Foreign Office spokesman indicated today Egypt would join a Middle East Defense Command if her current dispute with Britain is solved to this country's satisfaction.

The spokesman said this was the "personal impression" of the new premier, Aly Maher Pasha.

"If the other parts of the Egyptian case are dealt with satisfactorily from the Egyptian viewpoint, Egypt would naturally consider such participation favorably."

"The principle of participation of Egypt in a defensive Middle East pact in the framework of the charter of the United Nations is part of the whole Egyptian case."

The National Front (government) which is now under formation at the moment will have to decide Egypt's attitude toward this question, as well as toward all other aspects of the Egyptian case.

Meets Ambassadors

The new strongman premier met with ambassadors of the four powers which last October proposed that Egypt join the west in a Middle East Pact to defend the Suez Canal.

Though the western ambassadors said the "Arabs" could never make the courtesy visits usually made on a new government head, they came only a few hours after Maher Pasha told the London News Chronicle in an interview that "I am ready to discuss a Middle East Command with the four powers."

The premier talked first with U. S. Ambassador Jefferson Caffery. Half an hour later he called in the French envoy.

Talks with the British and Turkish ambassadors were also on his schedule.

Offer Was Spurned

These four powers offered last October to include Egypt in the proposed defense command. The offer was turned down immediately by the government of Premier Mustapha Mahas Pasha, who was ousted from office Sunday by King Farouk.

The round of talks came just one day after British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the House of Commons he believed it possible to agree with Egypt on a settlement which "satisfies the legitimate national aspirations of the Egyptian people, and at the same time does not jeopardize the security of the free world."

After other district meetings, they will complete the delegation choice at a state convention here Feb. 11, first of its kind in the nation.

Whereas a month ago it had been generally assumed here the delegation would go to Chicago unopposed but at least 12 to 4 behind Taft, competent observers now say they expect the vote to be about equally divided between Taft and Eisenhower.

Otis Sullivan, veteran political expert for the Daily Oklahoman, said he looks for such a result, with the possibility that most of the Oklahoma group would jump quickly to Eisenhower if it appeared the general was "going places" in the convention.

C. E. Barnes, attorney and former state chairman who is remanding the Eisenhower drive, predicted to this reporter the general will get the majority of the delegation out of the district and state conventions.

Story Is Significant

To this reporter, who has traveled thousands of miles and talked to politicians from most of the western states, the Oklahoma story is significant in that it seems to represent the first actual translation into delegate strength of the reputed Eisenhower popularity among rank and file Republicans.

If it is indicative of a trend, it could be bad news for Taft. Friends of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, including Rep. Hugh D. Scott (R-Pa.), played a leading part in organizing the Eisenhower drive here. Dewey got the state's convention votes in 1948.

Eisenhower drives have not yet reached the stage where the general's friends can say with confidence they are making inroads into the strength Taft built up with his extraordinarily early and effective campaign for vote pledges.

The Eisenhower people have apparent control in some states, such as Oregon, but they seemingly have not denied Taft strength materially in others, such as Washington.

Control Is Grabbed

Upsetting all the advance dope, the Eisenhower people grabbed control of the Oklahoma county convention here last week. This virtually assumed them of two delegates from the Fifth Congressional District, in a meeting to be held later.

City's Fire Loss Doubles, Chief's Report Discloses

No Commitment,
Says Churchill

Thus He Speaks About UN
Punitive Action—Call
Made for Vote

London, Jan. 30 (AP)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill said today Britain had no "formal commitment" to join with the United States in any punitive action against China if a Korean truce is broken.

Churchill told the House of Commons that the whole question was discussed among Britain, the United States and other governments with forces in Korea before he went to visit President Truman.

"It was agreed that clearly a very serious situation would arise in such an event and various contingencies had been examined without any definite or formal commitment being entered into," said Churchill.

Churchill said "no change was made in this situation while we were in the United States."

"In fact," he added, "the matter did not figure to any large extent in our discussions."

But Churchill also cautioned the House:

"It is not wise when a war is going on to tell everything always to everybody, including the enemy. They might, I think, sometimes be left something to guess about."

Vote Is Demanded

London, Jan. 30 (AP)—Labor members of Parliament demanded a vote of no confidence in the Conservative government today for proposing curbs on Britain's costly social services as part of a drastic economy program.

The motion was filed in the House of Commons just before the start of a two-day debate on Spartan proposals by R. A. Butler, chancellor of the exchequer, to put the country on its feet financially.

The motion was in the form of an amendment to one by Prime Minister Churchill asking House approval of the Butler plan.

If the Laborites should put their motion across, Churchill would have to resign and ask for a new national election. But the (Continued on Page 5, Col. 6)

$50,000—Total
$108,038

Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy's annual report to the Board of Fire Commissioners yesterday showed a 1951 fire loss in the city of $108,038.29.

This is $50,317.95 over the 1950 loss because of such damaging fires as that in School No. 5 where the loss was about $41,000, the Greenkill avenue cabinet works where the damage was estimated at $28,000 and the Deyo cider mill where the loss was about $20,000.

"Included in the total fire loss," the report said, is a loss paid on small fires occurring mostly in the homes (the fire department not called). This amounted to $3,959.20. The fire loss per capita was $3.07.

New Law Hits Buildings

A high percentage of local buildings, the chief said, will be affected by a new state law and he emphasized:

"I would call to the attention of the property owners, the New York State Multiple Housing Law (Continued on Page 5, Col. 5)

Fire, starting from an exploding kerosene stove, destroyed the large residence on the former Pell estate at Ulster Park and Mr. and Mrs. Michael Kroll and their family of six children lost all of their possessions Tuesday afternoon.

At the time of the fire Mr. Kroll was at work on the Mt. St. Alphonsus property where he is employed. Mrs. Kroll was at home with the children when the fire started. There was no phone available and she was compelled to go to the Singer home on the college grounds where she notified Mrs. (Continued on Page 14, Col. 4)

Budget Passage Predicted Without Major Changes

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 29 (AP)—Economy blocs today planned a final tax-cut onslaught against Governor Dewey's proposed record state budget of $1,094,000,000—but they were not hopeful.

Republican legislative sources predicted that New York's first billion-dollar budget would be approved without major alterations, despite huffing and puffing at a public hearing in the capitol Feb. 13.

to finance capital construction on a pay-as-you-build basis.

He termed the plan impractical and predicted that contractors would be hampered by limiting appropriations to cover certain work in a given budget year.

The Democrats were preparing a detailed attack on the Dewey budget and were expected to propose some budget "reforms."

In submitting the $1,094,000,000 budget to the legislature, Dewey said he was "glad" to report that tax increases were not necessary, despite a 94-million dollar jump in appropriations.

Reds Balk At Check on Their Units

Communists Also Agree to Join in Working in Demilitarized Zone in Korea

Raiders Withdraw
Heavy Resistance Forces
Allies to Retreat From Hill Position

Munsan, Korea, Jan. 30 (AP)—Communist negotiators in a double reversal today agreed to the Allies rotating 25,000 troops a month during an armistice and said Chinese would join in administering the demilitarized zone.

The Reds balked, however, at restraints on moving their troops secretly into threatening concentrations during an armistice.

Previously the Communists had agreed to rotating only 5,000 UN troops. The Allies are asking for 75,000 a month.

Yesterday the Reds indicated the Chinese would take no part in civil administration of the northern half of a buffer zone during an armistice. Today they reversed it.

All these actions were taken by staff officers working their way slowly through an 18-page Allied draft of a plan for supervising an armistice.

Object to Proposals

The Reds objected to two security proposals:

1. That both sides refrain from concentrating troops and guns in a manner to threaten the other side.

2. Both sides to report weekly the exact location of all major ground, naval and air units.

The Red agreement to rotating 25,000 Allied troops, while far short of Allied requests, represented a major change in the Communist position. Originally they opposed any rotation at all.

The Communist proposal today would include troops sent to Japan for "rest and recreation" in addition to those sent home to be replaced.

Allied staff officers said, under these circumstances, 75,000 would be a minimum figure, but if it were limited to replacements 40,000 would be enough. Current allied rotation figures are believed to run about 25,000 a month, and rest and relaxation leaves about the same.

Proposal Analyzed

In the subcommittee session on prisoner exchange, North Korean Maj. Gen. Lee Sang Cho analyzed the UN command proposal point by point. He expressed agreement in principle on a number of points but showed no change in attitude on key issues blocking agreement.

Lee accused the allies of holding to a "unreasonable and obstinate attitude" on three crucial questions:

1. Voluntary repatriation. The Reds want all prisoners of war exchanged whether they like it or not.

2. The UN proposal that certain prisoners would be released on parole not to fight in the Korean war again. This would remove thousands of former South Korean soldiers from the North Korean army.

3. The allied step-by-step exchange plan. Lee refers to it as a "one-for-one" plan. Allies hold ten times as many prisoners as the Reds. The Communists want an all-for-all exchange.

Lee again agreed in principle to the allied proposal that priority should be given to exchanging sick and wounded prisoners. He also approved the UN proposal for exchanging data on burial places of prisoners who died in POW camps.

Raiders Pull Out

Seoul, Korea, Jan. 30 (AP)—Allied raiders today fought through slush and mud on the western Korean front almost to the top of a Chinese held hill but heavy resistance forced them to withdraw.

In a new air battle one Russian-type jet was sent flaming to earth as American Sabre jets took on MIG-15s.

Warm weather melted snows, turning sections of the 155 mile Korean ground front into a quagmire.

Allied raiders struck through this muck northwest of Chorwon before dawn, nad ran into two (Continued on Page 14, Col. 3)

Fairchild Is Appointed

Reno, Nev., Jan. 30 (AP)—W. A. (Tiny) Fairchild, former partner of a meat packing company here, went out of business last year with a blast at the Office of Price Stabilization. He said OPS ceiling prices and slaughter quotas made it impossible to operate the packing plant at a profit. Yesterday, the OPS announced Fairchild has been appointed head of the foods section in the district office here.

Proves Coat Fits Under Girdle

New York, Jan. 30 (AP)—Can a Persian lamb coat be hidden inside a woman's girdle?

"It is physically impossible to do such a thing," said Defense Attorney Carson D. Baker yesterday at the trial of two women accused of shop lifting such a coat by concealing it under the girdle one of them wore.

But Assistant District Attorney James P. McGratton picked up a girdle entered in evidence. He wiggled his 180-pound frame and finally twisted the girdle over his hips. He picked up the coat in question and stuffed it inside.

Then, as he strutted back and forth before the jury, the prosecutor asked: "I leave it to you to decide whether it could or could not be done."

Sixty minutes later the jury found Margaret Walker, 30, and Mrs. Leary Wright, 47, both guilty.

Anne Morgan Dies At Mount Kisco

Mount Kisco, N. Y., Jan. 30 (AP)—Anne Morgan, philanthropist daughter of the late multimillionaire banker J. P. Morgan, died at her estate here yesterday.

The 78-year-old Miss Morgan, who devoted most of her life to charity and philanthropy, suffered a stroke four years ago and never completely regained her health.

She was the youngest of J. P.

Morgan's four children. Last of the four still alive is Mrs. Morgan Hamilton of New York.

Miss Morgan, who was born in New York, lived on a three million dollar trust fund. Her father left a fortune estimated at 100 million dollars when he died in 1913.

As one of the richest women in the United States, Miss Morgan also was one of the world's most eligible women. But she never married.

She was engrossed in such causes as French war relief, preparedness, international good will and opportunities for women.

She won the devotion of the French people by her work in the two world wars. She raised more than $5,000,000 to help France rebuild after World War I. In 1940, she did refugee relief work in France while the Nazis were pounding into the country.

Miss Morgan had a part in at least 50 patriotic and philanthropic organizations. On one occasion she became a factory inspector so she might see first hand the sweat-shop conditions under which women worked in the early 1900s.

Funeral services will be held Thursday morning at St. George's Episcopal Church in New York. Burial will be in Hartford, Conn., where her parents are buried.

The island of Kos in the Aegean Sea was the birthplace of Hippocrates, the father of medicine.

Will Show Henri Painting

Little One, a portrait of Karl Schleicher by Robert Henri, painted in Woodstock in 1921, will go on exhibit Saturday.

Smith Gallery Has Henri Art Listed For Coming Show

Woodstock, Jan. 30.—For the first time in many years a painting by Robert Henri will be on view here when the Mollie Smith Gallery re-opens Saturday, Feb. 2, at 2 p. m. Mrs. Smith, who went to New York last week to arrange for her forthcoming show with several dealers, was also entertained at the studio of the late Robert Henri, at 19 Gramercy Park, at which time she made her selection of the painting to be shown here. The studio is now occupied by Miss Violet Organ, sister-in-law of Henri, who is a frequent summer guest here at the home of Mrs. George Bellows.

One of Henri's most famous paintings, "Little One," a portrait of Karl Schleicher, was painted by the artist while he was staying in this village in 1921 and occupied the Allen Cochran studio. Karl Schleicher is the son of Eugene Schleicher, who is still a resident of this village, and was the former owner of the Jack Horner Shop which was located in the building later sold to Mrs. Joshua Rosette and now occupied by the Woodstock Guild of Crafts-men. During his stay here Henri painted all three of the Schleicher children, Hans the eldest, Agnes, and Karl, the youngest. Karl's portrait was later included in the Robert Henri Memorial Exhibit at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in 1931.

In her fall exhibition, Mrs. Smith included five Henri drawings, and in the new show two more will be shown in addition to the painting.

Other artists whose work has not been previously shown at Mrs. Smith's gallery include Henry Mattson, Alfio Faggi, Andrew Dasburg and Rockwell Kent. Both Dasburg and Kent were at one time associated with this art colony.

The exhibition will be on view until April 1.

The Woodstock Varsity will play Elston's of Kingston Friday night at the school. The Varsity will play the Esopus Firemen, Tuesday night, Feb. 3, and Friday, Feb. 8 will again play the 50 Club of Kingston.

Wilson Against Taking Reservoir Properties

Woodstock, Jan. 30.—Kenneth Wilson, town supervisor, in a statement made Tuesday morning at the Town Hall, concerning the reservoir properties owned by the City of Kingston in the Zena section of the village, said that he is definitely against the proposition that the Town of Woodstock take over the land surrounding the reservoirs as a recreation center.

Wilson explained that should the properties, under such a plan, become tax exempt, both School Districts No. 2 and No. 7 of Zena would suffer. The Zena district in particular. He is still in favor of the properties being bought by private owners, but added that a state recreational project might be a possibility, should the state become interested in the area for such a purpose.

Robbery Victim Dies

New York, Jan. 30.—A cashier was found bound and gagged in a seat inside the plushy Paris Theatre last night just before the show started. The gag was removed. And Walter Hoyer gasped: "I've been held up, Uncle Sam." His bonds were removed. He struggled to his feet, then collapsed and died. Police later said about $250 was missing from the theatre. An assistant medical examiner said Hoyer apparently died of a heart attack.

Airlines Establish New Safety Record But Deaths Double

Washington, Jan. 30 (AP)—More persons were killed in airplane accidents in 1951 than in any year in American civil aviation history. But the scheduled airlines set an impressive all-time safety record.

Even the non-scheduled, or irregularly operated airlines—despite a fatality rate double that for 1950—flew far more safely than in the years before 1950.

How could this be—greater air safety, yet more air deaths?

The answer is simple—far more people traveling by plane, and many of them traveling greater distances than ever before.

The Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) totals show that 321 persons died in civilian air crashes last year, compared with 144 in 1950.

The CAB says there were about 1.4 airplane passenger fatalities last year on domestic scheduled airlines for every 100 million passenger miles flown. That compares with 1.1 in 1950.

But last year the revenue passenger miles flown totalled about 10½ billion, some two billion more than in 1950 and four billion more than in 1947.

For the non-scheduled lines, there were 7.4 passenger fatalities per one million passenger miles last year, compared with 3.7 in 1950.

The non-scheduled lines flew an estimated one billion passenger miles last year compared with somewhat less than 780 million in 1950.

Withholding Permission

New York, Jan. 30 (AP)—The state Public Service Commission announced today it is withholding approval of a petition by the Rockland Light and Power Company to build pipe lines for natural gas in Orange county. PSC said permission was withheld until the firm can show that an adequate supply of gas is available. The company asked for permission to build 13 miles of high pressure lines to serve the villages of Warwick, Greenwood Lake, Chester, Florida, Monroe and Harriman and the towns of Warwick, Chester and Monroe.

PATTERSON A DEVOTED SERVANT

One day during World War II, Mrs. Robert P. Patterson asked her husband, then assistant secretary of war, to find out where their soldier son was stationed. They had heard nothing from him for seven months, and were worried.

Patterson refused to make a special inquiry. He told his wife he would not seek any information that was not equally available to every other father of a soldier.

Nothing could better illustrate the complete integrity of this man who served his country so valiantly in war and after. His death in an air crash near New York is a deep loss for all Americans.

In World War I he won a Distinguished Service Cross for leading a daylight patrol against two German machine gun nests and staying behind to cover his men's retreat.

Twice he was cited in "general orders" and he received the Silver Star for "gallant" conduct. He was wounded when he walked through enemy fire to direct his men to cover. Yet he never wanted to talk about his combat days.

After the war he practiced law until President Hoover named him a federal judge in New York. But his interest in Army affairs never flagged.

In July, 1940, President Roosevelt wired him to offer him the assistant secretaryship of war. When the message was delivered, Patterson was doing K.P. as part of his reserve officers' refresher course at Plattsburg, N. Y.

With characteristic humility he said: "They could get a better man, but if they want me, I'll accept."

Patterson served in that post under Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson, himself a devoted and able public servant.

But Stimson by that time was in his 70's, and much of the real burden of his job fell on Patterson's shoulders. His performance was magnificent and selfless.

Upon Stimson's resignation in 1945, President Truman gave Patterson his choice of that job or a berth on the Supreme Court. Patterson replied he would serve wherever the President thought him best fitted.

Mr. Truman thereupon appointed him Secretary of War. At that time he awarded him a Distinguished Service Medal.

From then until his retirement on July 24, 1947, Patterson slaved tirelessly to effect unification of the armed services. After that he went back to private law practice, but his voice frequently was raised in behalf of measures he considered important to the country.

America has had many devoted public servants in recent decades. But a few stand out above the rest. Robert Patterson belongs on the mountain tops with Henry Stimson and James Forrestal.

A nation can command no higher services than it gains from men of his lofty character and talents.

It's still true that there is no place like home, and in these days of housing shortage it looks to some as if there were no such place at all.

WELL-FORGOTTEN ANNIVERSARY

February 3 is the anniversary of an event which is not likely to be celebrated with great enthusiasm. It was on that date in 1910 that Wyoming became the thirty-sixth state to ratify a constitutional amendment which permitted a graduated tax on incomes. Conservative opponents of the measure called it "confiscation" and "socialism."

Income taxes have not grown more popular since that time, but after forty-two years it looks as if it is here to stay. The wage-earner who is aghast at the cut taken out of his paycheck by the government has grown resigned to it. Still he is not likely to celebrate, as a gay holiday, the anniversary of the day when this form of taxation was legalized.

Fond parents hope that their children will have no more trouble making their mark in the world than they do in making it on the new wallpaper.

IT LOOKS LIKE A REAL FIGHT

There are those who deprecate the divisions that arise from politicking. They bespeak unity. Yet, it is characteristic of our society that every child ought to aspire to the Presidency and some men do. The keener the public interest, the more violent and sincere the campaign, the more numerous the aspirants, the better it is for the country. Let excitement reign and the truth comes out!

Now there are ample Republican and Democratic aspirants to have some real hot excitement over personalities and issues during the process of elimination prior to the final ballot at the convention. Even among the Democrats, there are several hopeful ones, and should President Truman, on April 29, announce his departure from glory, which I cannot believe will happen, there will be many more. It would really do this nation good to have a dozen candidates in each party, all of them telling what they think and know about each other.

The emergence of Senator Estes Kefauver, as a candidate, is difficult to understand. Except for his abortive investigation of gambling, so competently dramatized and televised, he has hardly any record of outstanding achievement in the Senate. Nevertheless, he has made himself a popular figure via television, and his languid manner somehow does give the appearance of substance. He looks like a paragon of virtue, more the New England reformer than the Tennessee politician—that is, on television.

Whether his candidacy is realistic depends entirely upon the purposes of President Truman, who, if on April 29, he decides to continue, the convention of his party will have no way of stopping him. Kefauver then might be a Vice-Presidential candidate, if Truman will have him.

In the South, there is a firm desire to live without Truman as President. Yet, Southerners who are more Republican in their outlook than some Republican Senators, nevertheless could not join in such a coalition as Senator Karl Mundt proposed, nor will they actually vote against the Democratic Party when the time comes for a showdown in the voting booth. Habit with them is more potent than self-interest, which is not an unusual human trait, as anyone who studies the peregrinations of the human soul knows.

It has been suggested in the South, and I understand that such a plan has actually been proposed by Governor Allan Shivers of Texas, that a Democrat run for the Presidency whose object would be to defeat Truman and yet not be elected himself. In a word, such a candidate would be a totem pole, to draw off the curse from voting Republican. Thus, Truman would lose the Southern States, which would mean his defeat; yet the Southerners would not cast their ballots for the party of Lincoln.

Such a plan might make the election a stalemate, throw it into Congress in accordance with the Constitution and delay decision for months. But it would defeat Truman.

The South always presents this psychological problem. In the 1940, 1944 and 1948 campaigns, hopes were elevated among Republicans that sooner or later a way would be found to form a Republican-Southern Democratic coalition but nothing serious ever came of it. A group that called themselves Jeffersonian Democrats came into existence for this purpose, but they achieved nothing. The Dixiecrats of 1948 did not aid in the election of a Republican, although no Democrat was ever more offensive to Southerners than Harry Truman.

To those who are not Southerners, the continuance of post-Civil War psychology is difficult to understand in view of the changing economic conditions in the South. Yet, it is a continuing fact in American affairs and must be taken seriously, particularly as some states in the South and Southwest are increasing in population, and therefore in representation in Congress and in the political convention.

The current popularity of General Eisenhower in the South may arise from the assumption that it would be possible to vote for him for other reasons than that he has declared himself to be a Republican. To Southerners, therefore, he is a way out of their dilemma, which is how to vote against Truman without voting for a Republican. But that argument does not do much good in other parts of the country.

The real fact is that names do count for more than principles and symbols affect men's minds potently. And yet the names, Democratic and Republican, per se, have no such meaning as they had during the Presidency of Andrew Johnson. (Copyright, 1952, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

PREVENTIVE HEALTH TREATMENT

Now that 20 full years have been added to the life span during the past 50 years there is, as stated before, a very large number of men and women past 50 years of age. The lengthening of the life span means that these elderly folk need attention not only for the ailments common to the young and middle-aged, but for the ailments that come on with old age. It can thus be seen that the geriatrician must know diseases and symptoms common to all ages.

One of the important factors in preserving the health and preventing ailments in the elderly is nutrition and food.

Generally speaking, the dietary of the geriatric patient should fulfill the following requirements: Food intake must maintain normal weight with 1 gm. protein (meat, fish, eggs) daily for every two pounds of weight. There should be sufficient vegetables and daily products to yield the necessary vitamin and minerals, and then enough carbohydrates (bread, sugar, potatoes, cereals) to round out a meal. Fats should be reduced greatly in amount.

One of the most helpful forms of treatment is gland extracts which are being used with excellent results. Just as women have change of life, so also do men, and the gland extracts ease men and women from middle-age into old age without the terrible shock and other symptoms at this period of life. It is the gradual wasting away of the sex glands that cause symptoms during change of life. Preventive care, not treatment of existing diseases or symptoms, is the aim of the geriatrician who, in most cases, has been and is a general practitioner.

As we grow older, we will appear to need reassurance about our health. The elderly patient may be given ideas on how to improve eating habits, how to get extra sleep, the need for exercise yet warning against overdoing exercise, and suggestions regarding regulation of bowel movements.

People won't buy preventive care unless it's wrapped up in an appealing package. They want to see what these preventive measures have been and are doing for elderly people. The age-fighting idea is contagious. People hear about it, try it, like it, tell their friends. Geriatrics is no new specialty in medicine and health but an untapped field of service for the general practitioner.

In this age of specialists, physicians who treat special ailments or diseases, there is indeed a large field for the general practitioner who not only has treated all parts of the body but has learned human nature and how it should be handled.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington—One reason for the extra-tight secrecy during the House Judiciary Committee's debate on probing the Justice Department was that the personal doctor of President Truman, Maj. Gen. Wallace Graham, was involved.

Also, Attorney General Howard McGrath used just about every lobbying trick in the bag to prevent the probe, and certain congressmen didn't want it known how abruptly they reversed themselves because of administration pressure. Among these was Chairman Emmanuel Celler of New York, who had just notified the President that he was going to do what he did not do—investigate.

The dynamite regarding Truman's personal physician was tossed into the closed-door committee discussion by Congressman Kenneth Keating of New York, who told how General Graham had tried to keep the notorious Rumanian, Nicola Malaxa, in the U.S.A.

Keating has alleged that Malaxa has sent jewelry to Ana Pauker, Communist premier of Roumania, has collaborated with the Nazis and the Communists, and has had so much drag with Moscow that he is the only Rumanian businessman able to get $2,000,000 out of that country. A CIA report found in Judy Keating's purse also showed that Malaxa made Field Marshal Goerring's brother a partner in his business before the war.

Nevertheless, the Justice Department gave Malaxa a favorable report, putting him in a preferred position to become a permanent resident of the United States.

This recommendation, Congressman Keating told the judiciary committee, was based partly on an affidavit from Maj. Gen. Wallace Graham "building him up as a fine fellow."

"Apparently this man (Malaxa) reaches into high places," the New York Republican told his astonished colleagues. "I want to find out how high and who his sponsors are besides Dr. Graham. I also want to find out who in the immigration service wrote that report clearing Malaxa."

Note—Once before, Dr. Graham faced congressional charges, and admitted speculating on the commodity market. Unproved, he was later promoted by the President from brigadier general to major general. On one occasion, Malaxa came all the way from New York to Washington to get a physical checkup by General Graham.

Not Wire-Pulling

About ten days before the hot debate inside the judiciary committee, its chairman, Manny Celler of Brooklyn, went down to the White House and warned the President that he was going to investigate the Justice Department.

He told Mr. Truman that he was under great pressure to make the probe and as a matter of courtesy, wanted the White House to know he was proceeding. The President, however, urged him to hold off, even promised to remove Attorney General McGrath.

"I'm going to clean this thing up," the President said, and told Celler how he was appointing McGrath as ambassador to Spain, replacing him with Judge Justin Miller. The President talked at some length about what an able man Miller is and how everything would be cleaned up, thus making Celler's investigation unnecessary.

Thereafter, powerful influences went to bat for the attorney general, including his law partner, Senator Green of Rhode Island, and Cardinal Spellman of New York. Thereafter, also, the President reversed himself.

But, despite the fact that no change has been made in the Justice Department, Celler did exactly the opposite of what he told the White House. He pulled all sorts of wires to block a Justice Department probe by his committee, even postponing the first vote for five days to give the administration time to high-pressure all Democratic members.

"Backward" Denver

Few American cities have contributed more to western culture than Denver, Colo. Since the day when Buffalo Bill hitched his horse in front of the Windsor Hotel, the colorful Rocky Mountain metropolis has given the nation such famous figures as Judge Ben Lindsey, Novelist Gene Fowler, and Maestro Paul Whiteman.

President Truman, therefore, pricked up his ears when it was suggested that he include Denver in his Point 4 relief program for "backward areas."

The proposal was made by Indiana's pookish, redheaded congressman Ray Madden as a joke on former Congressman John Carroll of Colorado, now a White House adviser.

"All right, I'll bite—why does Denver belong under the Point 4 Program?" inquired Truman. "Oh, it's a backward area, sure enough, Mr. President," replied Madden, dryly. "John Carroll here tells me that Denver doesn't have a television station."

"That's because we're waiting for the TV programs to improve," countered Carroll, with a grin. "Folks out my way are awfully particular."

Brass Hat Witnesses

So many brass hats have been attending congressional hearings—some as mere messenger boys—that Secretary of Defense Lovett has cracked down on them.

What made him do so was when Sen. Lyndon Johnson, Texas Democrat, stopped a secret hearing on tank production to count the number of military assistants backstopping the witness. He counted a total of 14 military personnel, actually outnumbering the senators and their staff. One colonel had the sole job of flipping over pages, while another colonel pointed at charts and statistics to illustrate what the witness was saying.

This outraged Johnson who had already complained to the Pentagon about having "more chiefs than Indians." As a result of Johnson's wrath, the secretary of defense hastily wrote a private memo to the secretaries of the army, navy, and air force.

"I am convinced," wrote Lovett, "that much can be done to reduce the numbers of officers attending hearings. . . . It appears that a general or flag officer should attend a hearing only when he is to be a principal witness on matter of policy or when the legislation is of major importance. Attendance of high ranking officers as observers or as witnesses on unimportant legislation should be held to a minimum." (Copyright, 1951, The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Liver Malady Studies

Phoenix, Ariz. (AP)—Public health officers are apprehensively watching the worst outbreak of hepatitis (liver inflammation) in the history of the United States. The epidemic is among children in the Navajo Indian school at Tuba City, Ariz. Of 400 children, more than 300 have the disease. It is not often fatal, but no cure is known and it is capable of spreading far and wide. In Tuba City the disease was first diagnosed as flu, a common mistake. It was not recognized as hepatitis until an Indian died in November. The disease spreads from person to person and also in water and food.

UN Action Confirms Charges Heard in Congress of Russian Efforts Against China

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Jan. 30—When the United Nations exhibits the candor and courage that go with moral force and tells the whole world that the nation which has broken a treaty is guilty of an offense against the code of decent governments, the episode is of the utmost importance and deserves the widest attention.

This, however, is not the only significance derivable from the action of the UN's principal committee on world policy in finding Soviet Russia guilty of breaking her treaty with the National Government of China which was consummated in 1945. For what is really revealed is a confirmation of many charges aired in congressional committees here that Russia was constantly undermining the position of the Nationalist Government and that the downfall of the Nationalists was in no small part due to the influence of an outside power—namely, Communist Russia.

This is also, in substance, the charge made in a public speech a few months ago by Dean Rusk, assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs, only to be condemned by American opponents of the Chiang Kai-shek government as being a deviation from the policies of the American Government and as closing the door to recognition of the Communist Government in China.

It will be noted that the vote in the UN committee was 24 to 9 and that 25 countries abstained. Those which did not vote included Great Britain and her commonwealth representatives and France. But Indonesia, India, Israel and Burma voted with the Soviet block against the resolution. Presumably the British and other nations which have recognized the Communist Government in China felt that to vote for the resolution would embarrass them or call into question their previous action in previously having extended recognition to that government.

The UN committee's resolution declared: "The Soviet Union obstructed the efforts of the National Government of China in re-establishing Chinese National authority in the three eastern provinces (Manchuria) after the surrender of Japan and gave military and economic aid to the Chinese Communists against the National Government of China."

The resolution also stated that in doing this Russia "in her relations with China since the surrender of Japan has failed to carry out the treaty of friendship and alliance between China and the Soviet Union of Aug. 14, 1945."

This is precisely what has been contended in Washington by critics of some of the American advisers in China accused of pro-Communist sympathies, and to some extent it has been the basis for challenging the State Department itself on the grounds that failure to give whole-hearted support to the national government weakened the central government and led eventually to its military collapse and defeat.

Under that same treaty, each side was to respect the other's sovereignty and Russia was obligated to give military and moral support exclusively to the national government of China. The resolution stated that the Soviet Union had "failed to carry out" these provisions.

The way is opened now in the UN for a comprehensive examination of Russian behavior, particularly her breaking of other treaties and agreements, since the surrender of Japan. The fact that the national government, driven back to a small area in Formosa as a base, can still stand up in the United Nations and get approval for its resolution condemning Russia's violations of the Russo-China Treaty is an encouraging demonstration of the faith of the UN in the national government of China as the only surviving legitimate regime there. Thus it is proved again that military domination of a territory is not the only criterion in affording consideration to the claims of a legitimate government whose sovereign representatives still sit in the United Nations Security Council and the assembly. What is important is how the military supremacy was attained.

The passage of the resolution was the biggest triumph by the Chiang Kai-shek regime in world diplomacy in the last few years and underlines the fact that Red China, by her behavior in Korea, has alienated the support of a majority of the nations voting on the resolution in the UN.

It is regrettable, of course, that Great Britain and France did not vote their concurrence but abstained from voting. Abstention from voting does not, to be sure, pass judgment either way on the merits of the resolution. What ever the technicalities were that motivated such a course, it would have been refreshing and inspirational if Great Britain and France had stood with the United States in condemning Russia as faithless to her pledged word.

Back in 1914, France cried out against violation of a treaty by Germany in invading Belgium and won American sympathy and ultimately American military support. Back in 1939, Britain went to the aid of Poland because of a treaty guaranteeing aid, and the United States eventually sent her troops across the Atlantic to help in that cause. It is tragic that all nations are not yet willing formally to call a treaty violator by that name in the UN.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Frankfurt—The big red numeral "one" of the First Infantry Division, the first regular division the U. S. army ever had, stands up like a stalwart soldier on yellow signboards for miles along the Autobahn before you come to division headquarters at Darmstadt.

This was Gen. Pershing's favorite division in the first world war. It is the division which Maj. Gen. Terry Allen turned loose in North Africa, after a hard spell of fighting which was its initiation to World War II.

Gen. Allen, as truculent as a bantam itself, thought the men of Big Red One weren't setting their share of the fun at the time, and they expressed their animal spirits so robustly that there were official repercussions. It was the official view that Big Red One had been too rough in its relaxations and needed discipline soon after entering Darmstadt.

Today you encounter indications that Big Red One has suffered an overdose of refinement. In proximity to the barracks where division headquarters does business, your eyes observe a sign reading "beauty shop." On the same ladder of signs a directory of the headquarters command lettered in black on white boards about eight feet from top to bottom, you observe that the PX is down this way.

In Heidelberg, the headquarters of Gen. Thomas Handy, supreme commander of American forces in Europe, who wears the same constellation that Pershing wore—four on each shoulder, a veritable milky way until Roosevelt inflated and cheapened the rank—again one apprehension that the Russians might be intent on abrupt, violent mischief are allayed by signs reading "beauty shop" and PX.

In the large, sprawling retail cut-rate department store here in Frankfurt which operates as an auxiliary to the commissary in the guise of a post exchange, there is also a beauty shop and even a music shop.

Luxurious Danish silverware and cameras at prices far below American retail costs, and expensive watches which are very deluxe for soldiers of a fighting command.

Now Lt. Gen. Manton Eddy, commander of the Seventh American Army, which is the real muscle of Gen. Handy's European command, insists that his army, including the First Division, is not an army of occupation or a garrison force, but a field army ready to fight on a minute's notice.

On great maps in his headquarters, spears and other such markers show the position of patrols of American soldiers, almost unanimously without experience in war posted right up against the Iron Curtain, with electrical communications so refined that a Russian attack starting a third world war would set gongs ringing all over Seventh Army Headquarters in Stuttgart in a quarter of an hour.

Never more than 15 per cent of the Seventh Army is away on pass or leave, and routine, all-over command is based on anticipation of an attack any minute of the day or night. There is an understanding that it would be better to flash a false alarm and start the whole army wheeling into position to fight than to risk another Pearl Harbor out of bashfulness.

On this point an officer in charge of these electrical communications revealed that he had a corporal in his outfit who received a regular U. S. Army commercial cablegram which George Marshall sent to Gen. Short and Adm. Kimball at Hawaii the morning after the night that Marshall could not account for in his sworn testimony about the eight-hour delay in warning those commanders.

The corporal now in Germany got Marshall's leisurely commercial cable three hours before the (Continued on Page 13, Col. 5)

PATTERSON A DEVOTED SERVANT

One day during World War II, Mrs. Robert P. Patterson asked her husband, then assistant secretary of war, to find out where their soldier son was stationed. They had heard nothing from him for seven months, and were worried.

Patterson refused to make a special inquiry. He told his wife he would not seek any information that was not equally available to every other father of a soldier.

Nothing could better illustrate the complete integrity of this man who served his country so valiantly in war and after. His death in an air crash near New York is a deep loss for all Americans.

In World War I he won a Distinguished Service Cross for leading a daylight patrol against two German machine gun nests and staying behind to cover his men's retreat.

Twice he was cited in "general orders" and he received the Silver Star for "gallant" conduct. He was wounded when he walked through enemy fire to direct his men to cover. Yet he never wanted to talk about his combat days.

After the war he practiced law until President Hoover named him a federal judge in New York. But his interest in Army affairs never flagged.

In July, 1940, President Roosevelt wired him to offer him the assistant secretaryship of war. When the message was delivered, Patterson was doing K.P. as part of his reserve officers' refresher course at Plattsburg, N. Y.

With characteristic humility he said: "They could get a better man, but if they want me, I'll accept."

Patterson served in that post under Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson, himself a devoted and able public servant.

But Stimson by that time was in his 70's, and much of the real burden of his job fell on Patterson's shoulders. His performance was magnificent and selfless.

Upon Stimson's resignation in 1945, President Truman gave Patterson his choice of that job or a berth on the Supreme Court. Patterson replied he would serve wherever the President thought him best fitted.

Mr. Truman thereupon appointed him Secretary of War. At that time he awarded him a Distinguished Service Medal.

From then until his retirement on July 24, 1947, Patterson slaved tirelessly to effect unification of the armed services. After that he went back to private law practice, but his voice frequently was raised in behalf of measures he considered important to the country.

America has had many devoted public servants in recent decades. But a few stand out above the rest. Robert Patterson belongs on the mountain tops with Henry Stimson and James Forrestal.

A nation can command no higher services than it gains from men of his lofty character and talents.

It's still true that there is no place like home, and in these days of housing shortage it looks to some as if there were no such place at all.

WELL-FORGOTTEN ANNIVERSARY

February 3 is the anniversary of an event which is not likely to be celebrated with great enthusiasm. It was on that date in 1910 that Wyoming became the thirty-sixth state to ratify a constitutional amendment which permitted a graduated tax on incomes. Conservative opponents of the measure called it "confiscation" and "socialism."

Income taxes have not grown more popular since that time, but after forty-two years it looks as if it is here to stay. The wage-earner who is aghast at the cut taken out of his paycheck by the government has grown resigned to it. Still he is not likely to celebrate, as a gay holiday, the anniversary of the day when this form of taxation was legalized.

Fond parents hope that their children will have no more trouble making their mark in the world than they do in making it on the new wallpaper.

IT LOOKS LIKE A REAL FIGHT

There are those who deprecate the divisions that arise from politicking. They bespeak unity. Yet, it is characteristic of our society that every child ought to aspire to the Presidency and some men do. The keener the public interest, the more violent and sincere the campaign, the more numerous the aspirants, the better it is for the country. Let excitement reign and the truth comes out!

Now there are ample Republican and Democratic aspirants to have some real hot excitement over personalities and issues during the process of elimination prior to the final ballot at the convention. Even among the Democrats, there are several hopeful ones, and should President Truman, on April 29, announce his departure from glory, which I cannot believe will happen, there will be many more. It would really do this nation good to have a dozen candidates in each party, all of them telling what they think and know about each other.

The emergence of Senator Estes Kefauver, as a candidate, is difficult to understand. Except for his abortive investigation of gambling, so competently dramatized and televised, he has hardly any record of outstanding achievement in the Senate. Nevertheless, he has made himself a popular figure via television, and his languid manner somehow does give the appearance of substance. He looks like a paragon of virtue, more the New England reformer than the Tennessee politician—that is, on television.

Whether his candidacy is realistic depends entirely upon the purposes of President Truman, who, on April 29, he decides to continue, the convention of his party will have no way of stopping him. Kefauver then might be a Vice-Presidential candidate, if Truman will have him.

In the South, there is a firm desire to live without Truman as President. Yet, Southerners who are more Republican in their outlook than some Republican Senators, nevertheless could not join in such a coalition as Senator Karl Mundt proposed, nor will they actually vote against the Democratic Party when the time comes for a showdown in the voting booth. Habit with them is more potent than self-interest, which is not an unusual human trait, as anyone who studies the peregrinations of the human soul knows.

It has been suggested in the South, and I understand that such a plan has actually been proposed by Governor Allan Shivers of Texas, that a Democrat run for the Presidency whose object would be to defeat Truman and yet not be elected himself. In a word, such a candidate would be a totum pole, to draw off the curse from voting Republican. Thus, Truman would lose the Southern States, which would mean his defeat; yet the Southerners would not cast their ballots for the party of Lincoln.

Such a plan might make the election a stalemate, throw it into Congress in accordance with the Constitution and delay decision for months. But it would defeat Truman.

The South always presents this psychological problem. In the 1940, 1944 and 1948 campaigns, hopes were elevated among Republicans that sooner or later a way would be found to form a Republican-Southern Democratic coalition but nothing serious ever came of it. A group that called themselves Jeffersonian Democrats came into existence for this purpose, but they achieved nothing. The Dixiecrats of 1948 did not aid in the election of a Republican, although no Democrat was ever more offensive to Southerners than Harry Truman.

To those who are not Southerners, the continuance of post-Civil War psychology is difficult to understand in view of the changing economic conditions in the South. Yet, it is a continuing fact. American affairs must be taken seriously, particularly as some states in the South and Southwest are increasing in population, and therefore in representation in Congress and in the political conventions.

The current popularity of General Eisenhower in the South may arise from the assumption that it would be possible to vote for him for other reasons than that he has declared himself to be a Republican. To Southerners, therefore, he is a way out of their dilemma, which is how to vote against Truman without voting for a Republican. But that argument does not do much good in other parts of the country.

The realistic fact is that names do count for more than principles and symbols affect men's minds potentially. And yet the names, Democratic and Republican, per se, have no such meaning as they had during the Presidency of Andrew Johnson. (Copyright, 1952, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Thereafter, powerful influences went to bat for the attorney general, including his law partner, Senator Green of Rhode Island, and Cardinal Spellman of New York. Thereafter, also, the President reversed himself.

But, despite the fact that no change has been made in the Justice Department, Celler did exactly the opposite of what he told the White House. He pulled all sorts of wires to block a Justice Department probe by his committee, even postponing the first vote for five days to give the administration time to high-pressure all Democratic members.

"Backward" Denver

Few American cities have contributed more to western culture than Denver, Colo. Since the day when Buffalo Bill hitched his horse in front of the Windsor Hotel, the colorful Rocky Mountain metropolis has given the nation such famous figures as Judge Ben Lindsay, Novelist Gene Fowler, and Maestro Paul Whiteman.

President Truman, therefore, picked up his end when it was suggested that he include Denver in his Point 4 relief program for "backward areas."

The proposal was made by Indiana's pukeish, redheaded congressman Ray Madden as a joke on former Congressman John Carroll of Colorado, now a White House adviser.

"All right, I'll bite—why does Denver belong under the Point 4 Program?" inquired Truman.

"Oh, it's a backward area, sure enough," Mr. President," replied Madden, dryly. "John Carroll here tells me that Denver doesn't have a television station."

"That's because we're waiting for the TV programs to improve," bantered Carroll, with a grin. "Folks out my way are awfully particular."

Brass Hat Witnesses

So many brass hats have been attending congressional hearings—some as mere messenger boys—that Secretary of Defense Lovett has cracked down on them.

What made him do so was when Sen. Lyndon Jonson, Texas Democrat, stopped a secret hearing on tank production to count the number of military assistants backstopping the witness. He counted a total of 14 military personnel, actually outnumbering the senators and their staff.

One colonel had the sole job of flipping over pages, while another colonel pointed at charts and statistics to illustrate what the witness was saying.

This outraged Johnson who had already complained to the Pentagon about having "more chiefs than Indians." As a result of Johnson's wrath, the secretary of defense hastily wrote a private memo to the secretaries of the army, navy, and air force.

"I am convinced," wrote Lovett, "that much can be done to reduce the number of officers attending hearings.... It appears that a general or flag officer should attend a hearing only when he is to be a principal witness on matter of policy or when the legislation is of major importance. Attendance of high ranking officers as observers or as witnesses on unimportant legislation should be held to a minimum."

Liver Malady Studies

Phoenix, Ariz. (AP)—Public health officers are apprehensively watching the worst outbreak of hepatitis (liver inflammation) in the history of the United States. The epidemic is among children in the Navajo Indian school at Tuba City, Ariz. Of 400 children, more than 300 have the disease. It is not often fatal, but no cure is known and it is capable of spreading far and wide. In Tuba City the disease was first diagnosed as flu, a common mistake. It was not recognized as hepatitis until an Indian girl died in November. The disease spreads from person to person and also in water and food.

UN Action Confirms Charges Heard in Congress of Russian Efforts Against China

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Jan. 30—When the United Nations exhibits the candor and courage that go with moral force and tells the whole world that the nation which has broken a treaty is guilty of an offense against the code of decent governments, the episode is of the utmost importance and deserves the widest attention.

This, however, is not the only significance derivable from the action of the UN's principal committee on world policy in finding Soviet Russia guilty of breaking her treaty with the National Government of China which was consummated in 1945. For what is really revealed is a confirmation of many charges aired in congressional committees here that Russia was constantly undermining the position of the Nationalist Government and that the downfall of the Nationalists was in no small part due to the influence of an outside power—namely, Communist Russia. This is also, in substance, the charge made in a public speech a few months ago by Dean Rusk, assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs, only to be condemned by American opponents of the Chiang Kai-shek government as being a deviation from the policies of the American Government and as closing the door to recognition of the Communist Government in China.

It will be noted that the vote in the UN committee was 24 to 9 and that 25 countries abstained. Those which did not vote included Great Britain and her commonwealth representatives and France. But Indonesia, India, Israel and Burma voted with the Soviet block against the resolution. Presumably the British and other nations which have recognized the Communist Government in China felt that to vote for the resolution would embarrass them or call into question as inconsistent their action in previously having extended recognition to that government.

The UN committee's resolution declared: "The Soviet Union obstructed the efforts of the National Government of China in re-establishing Chinese National authority in the three eastern provinces (Manchuria) after the surrender of Japan and gave military and economic aid to the Chinese Communists against the National Government of China."

The resolution also stated that, in doing this Russia "in her relations with China since the surrender of Japan has failed to carry out the treaty of friendship and alliance between China and the Soviet Union of Aug. 14, 1945."

This is precisely what has been contended in Washington by critics of some of the American advisers in China accused of pro-Communist sympathies, and to some extent it has been the basis for challenging the State Department itself on the grounds that failure to give whole-hearted support to the national government weakened the central government and led eventually to its military collapse and defeat.

Under that same treaty, each side was to respect the other's sovereignty and Russia was obligated to give military and moral support exclusively to the national government of China. The resolution stated that the Soviet Union has "failed to carry out" these provisions.

The way is opened now in the UN for a comprehensive examination of Russian behavior, particularly her breaking of other treaties and agreements, since the surrender of Japan. The fact that the national government, driven back to a small area in Formosa as a base, can still stand up in the United Nations and get approval for its resolution condemning Russia's violations of the Russo-China Treaty is an encouraging demonstration of the faith of the UN in the national government of China as the only surviving legitimate regime there. Thus it is proved again that military domination of a territory is not the only criterion in affording consideration to the claims of a legitimate government whose sovereign representatives still sit in the United Nations Security Council and the assembly. What is important is how the military supremacy was attained.

The passage of the resolution was the biggest triumph by the Chiang Kai-shek regime in world diplomacy in the last few years and underlines the fact that Red China, by her behavior in Korea, has alienated the support of a majority of the nations voting on the resolution in the UN.

It is regrettable, of course, that Great Britain and France did not vote their concurrence but abstained from voting. Abstention from voting does not, be sure, pass judgment either way on the merits of the resolution. Whatever the technicalities were that motivated such a course, it would have been refreshing and inspirational if Great Britain and France had stood with the United States in condemning Russia as faithless to her pledge.

Back in 1914, France cried out against violation of a treaty by Germany in invading Belgium and won American sympathy and ultimately American military support. Back in 1939, Britain went to the aid of Poland because of a treaty guaranteeing aid, and the United States eventually sent her troops and undertakes to help in that cause. It is tragic that all nations are not yet willing formally to call a treaty violator by that name in the UN.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Frankfurt—The big red numeral "one" of the First Infantry Division, the first regular division the U. S. army ever had, stands up like a stalwart soldier on yellow signboards for miles along the Autobahn before you come to division headquarters at Darmstadt.

This was Gen. Pershing's favorite division in the first world war. It is the division which Maj. Gen. Terry Allen turned loose in North Africa, after a hard spell of fighting which was its initiation to World War II.

Gen. Allen, as truculent as a bantam itself, thought the men of Big Red One weren't getting their share of the fun at the time, and they expressed their animal spirits so robustly that there were official reports of insubordination. The official view that Big Red One had been too rough in its relaxations and needed discipline soon after entering Darmstadt.

Today you encounter indications that Big Red One has suffered an overdose of refinement. In proximity to the barracks where division headquarters does business, your eyes observe a sign reading "beauty shop." On the same ladder of signs a directory of the headquarters command lettered in black on white boards about eight feet from top to bottom, you observe that the PX is down this way.

In Heidelberg, the headquarters of Gen. Thomas Handy, supreme commander of American forces in Europe, who wears the same constellation that Pershing wore—four on each shoulder, a veritable milky way until Roosevelt inflated and cheapened the rank—again one's apprehensions that the Russians might be intent on abrupt, violent mischief are allayed by signs reading "beauty shop" and PX.

In the large, sprawling retail cut-rate department store here in Frankfurt which operates as an auxiliary to the commissary in the guise of a post exchange, there should be room in the Republican party, without vilification or recrimination from each other, for all whose names may be submitted for consideration at the Chicago convention.

State Will Take Over Old House

Poughkeepsie residents, and particularly members of the Mahewenawish Chapter DAR, were reported as jubilant yesterday because Governor Clinton House, of 549 Main street, in that city is to be retained as a state historic site.

The house is a colonial landmark, and it has been contended in the past that the first governor of the state had spent some time there, although this, said one source, has not been historically established.

The building, however, dates back to Clinton's time, and has been known as the Governor Clinton House. The local DAR acquired the property as an historic site and museum in 1900 and it was taken over by the state in 1900 under the administration of Governor Theodore Roosevelt.

Last fall it was recommended that the place be abandoned as one of permanent interest because it lacked statewide historic importance. This set the DAR, other organizations and individuals into action to have it retained as an historic site.

Their efforts were rewarded when it was decided by the State Joint Legislative Committee on Historic Sites that the house would retain its former status.

Assemblyman Robert W. Pomeroy, of Dutchess county, a member of the state committee, announced the decision yesterday.

New York Synod Gives $370,836 Report Shows

New York, Jan. 30 (AP)—The New York Synod of the United Lutheran Church in America contributed $370,836 to the church's budgeted income in 1951, it was announced today.

Edmund F. Wagner, church treasurer, said the Synod comprises New York state and New England.

The amount compares with $411,596.62 the previous year, when New Jersey was a part of the Synod. New Jersey now is a separate Synod.

Wagner said the contributions in 1951 actually represented an increase of about $30,000 for the New York-New England area.

Total contributions to the budgeted income by the church's 33 Synods in the United States and Canada were $4,392,933, an increase of more than 10 per cent over 1950.

The budgeted income supports the church's missionary, educational and service ministries and is separate from funds raised for use by synods and congregations locally.

Be Stern With Russia, Fire Acheson, Cut Aid American Legion Is Told

One speaker at the 33rd annual legislative dinner of the New York Department, American Legion, called for a warning to Russia and another said Dean Acheson should resign as secretary of state or be replaced.

The event took place at the Hotel Ten Eyck, Albany, and was attended by Legionnaires from all sections of the state, including posts from all areas in Ulster county.

At their annual mid-winter meeting preceding the dinner, state executive officers of the Legion announced the state convention would be held in Saratoga Springs July 31, Aug. 1 and 2.

The national convention will be held in New York city Aug. 24-28, National Commander Donald R. Wilson of Clarksburg, W. Va., said.

Would Warn Russia

Governor Thomas E. Dewey called on free nations to mark out a defense perimeter and warn Soviet Russia and her satellites to keep out.

Dewey declared: "If we say stay out of our defense perimeter they will stay out because they don't want atom bombs on Pekin."

"We've got to mean it," he said. Besides calling for the resignation of Acheson, Commander Wilson urged the discontinuance of Marshall Plan aid.

Dewey urged that the United States and its allies demarcate a defense perimeter to embrace all the area between Alaska and New Zealand — including Japan and Formosa.

Must Protect Japan

"If we don't," Dewey concluded, "Japan cannot live and our defenses will border on Hawaii and the coast of California and it will be too late."

"The Republican leader proposed that the United States negotiate a mutual defense alliance in the Pacific similar to the North Atlantic treaty. Dewey also urged that the members of the proposed alliance issue a warning that if there was another case of aggression in the Pacific, the invader would be attacked with 'every weapon at our command.'"

"The formal resolution adopted by the American Legion nationally does not refer to any person in the State Department specifically," Commander Wilson continued, "but I say it with emphasis."

The blond, 34-year-old boyish-looking veteran, who was elected national commander at the 33rd Legion convention last October in Miami, also urged the discontinuance of Marshall Plan aid.

"We believe," he said, "the time has come when financial aid under the Marshall Plan must be discontinued. The fundamental purpose of the plan was to stem the spread of communism and to buy friends."

Plan Ineffective
"But it is certainly questionable whether we have been able to halt the spread of communism because the Reds have been grabbing more and more."

In addition, when we find ourselves in such situations as exists in Korea, those we have tried to buy as friends tell us what we must do and what we cannot do."

Commander Wilson said the nations in Europe that have threatened to go Communist if financial aid was not forthcoming from this country would bend effort to avoid such an occurrence if the matter came to an issue.

So far as concerns Communistic infiltration into high positions of this government, Commander Wilson said:

"We would not endeavor to make statements where we do not have the facts. Nevertheless, I am of the conviction that every effort should be made to remove anyone whose loyalty is questionable. This pertains not only to the State Department, but to all departments of the government."

Would Use Every Weapon
The Commander said he and the Legion have little hope the Korean peace negotiations "will resolve any of the fundamental problems."

He said that all weapons now at our disposal should be used in Korea so the war can be won militarily as promptly as possible.

In advocating the bombing of Manchuria and a naval blockade of China, the national commander explained: "When this country went into the Korean fight, we ran World War and if we were prepared to take that chance then, there seems to be no indication that we have since grown weaker."

"We do not believe an all-out effort in Korea will provoke World War III. When Russia believes she can win a war with the United States, she will not need a pretense. She will strike the same as did Japan in World War II."

GOP members generally are confident they can carry the state this year, particularly if President Truman is the nominee.

Floyd Carrier, Republican state chairman, said his surveys show that Oklahomans want a change in Washington.

City's Fire Loss

which becomes effective in 1954. This requires a second means of exit from all multiple dwellings and will affect a large percentage of buildings in Kingston.

The total insurance carried on buildings and contents involved in all fires was $2,080,025.

463 Calls Answered

The department responded to 463 calls including 54 bell alarms, one of which was a second alarm, 39 false alarms, 314 telephone alarms, 16 no cause for alarm, 25 verbal reports, three calls for investigation of fires quenched by citizens, five mutual aid calls out of the city and 47 emergency calls.

Highest among causes for calls was 96 for grass, rubbish and brush fires. Others were 45 for auto and truck fires, 36 for oil burners out of adjustment, 8 chimney fires, 10 for dump fires, 12 for short circuits in electric fixtures, 11 for ignited roasts and drippings, 7 for electric wires burning in poles and trees, 14 caused by cigarettes, 6 refrigerator fires, and 7 for electric wires burning on poles or trees.

Other causes for calls were 3 for children playing with matches, 3 for delayed ignition in oil burners, one for a fire caused by a television wire being struck by lightning, and many others including a fire in a boys' hut.

Emergency Aid Given

Emergency calls during the year varied from the usual cat-in-a-tree type and on one instance firemen were called to get a man out of a tree. Four calls were to assist persons locked out of apartments.

Another among the unusual was a call to assist a bird which had become caught in a tree by a piece of string, and one to get a raccoon out of a tree. The firemen helped four cats out of trees.

The chief's report on classification of buildings in which fires occurred showed 91 in frame dwellings, nine in brick, 12 in frame apartments, four in frame mercantile apartments, and eight in brick mercantile apartments. Three fires were in brick factory structures and three in brick mercantile office structures. Two were in frame garages and three in brick homes.

The total insurance on buildings

involved in fires was $448,325 and the total fire loss was $71,606.26. Total insurance on contents was $147,900 and the fire loss on contents was $32,472.83.

Value of insurance on buildings for incipient fires in buildings for which the department was not called was $1,316,500, and the fire loss was $702,20. Insurance on contents was $167,300, and fire loss on contents, $3,257.

Out of City Calls

Calls out of the city included one on March 31, 1951, to give assistance to persons stranded by high water on Esopus avenue, a call to Hurley Feb. 1, one to Bloomingburg Feb. 13, to Port Jervis Dec. 12 and South Rondout Dec. 19.

Of the 963 inspections made by the department, 437 were in dance halls and theatres, 446 buildings, and 80 investigations of complaints.

The report shows 13,550 feet of 1½-inch hose used, 41,350 feet of 2½-inch hose, 1,509 feet of ladders raised, 12 salvage covers spread and 15½ engine pumping hours at fires. Considerable chemicals, dry powder, Indian pumps and brooms were used.

The building report, which was published earlier this month, showed 550 permits issued at a total estimated cost of $2,846,992. This was $2,034,478 under that of 1950 because of a heavier public building program that year.

The chief thanked officers and members of the paid department for their "cooperation and efficient work" also Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk, members of the fire board, and two department chaplains, the local press, and radio, several city departments and the citizens of the city.

Is 43rd Report

The summation of the year's work was the department's 43rd annual report. Mention was also made of the two 500-gallon-per-minute pumps bought during the year, one for the John N. Cordts Hose Company and one for Rapid Hose Company. These, he said, add to the department's efficiency.

"I again recommend the purchase of a piece of equipment each year until the department is modernized," the chief said. "Pumping capacity is very important in times of emergency. It may be necessary to relay water a mile or more from different sources of supply."

First Fire Engine Was From England

Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy's tribute to the city's volunteer firemen in his report to the fire board yesterday, noted that they will observe their 198th anniversary this year.

The chief said:

"The volunteer fire department will celebrate its 198th anniversary in 1952. The department was organized Nov. 27, 1754 when a fire engine was ordered from England at a cost of 80 pounds."

"This engine was delivered on May 15, 1757, and on Oct. 16, 1777 the engine was burned when the British soldiers applied the torch to the village."

"The volunteer firemen were not the type of men to give up. They continued to organize and improve their department. This spirit has been carried to the present time. Volunteer fire companies are active and are rendering a very valuable service to the city. I sincerely appreciate their cooperation and efficient work."

State Will Take Over Old House

Poughkeepsie residents, and particularly members of the Mahewasaghs Chapter DAR, were reported as jubilant yesterday because Governor Clinton House, of 549 Main street, in that city is to be retained as a state historic site.

The house is a colonial landmark, and it has been contended in the past that the first governor of the state had spent some time there, although this, said one source, has not been historically established.

The building, however, dates back to Clinton's time, and has been known as the Governor Clinton House. The local DAR acquired the property as an historic site and museum in 1900 and it was taken over by the state in 1900 under the administration of Governor Theodore Roosevelt.

Last fall it was recommended that the place be abandoned as one of permanent interest because it lacked statewide historic importance. This set the DAR, other organizations and individuals into action to have it retained as an historic site.

Their efforts were rewarded when it was decided by the State Jan. 1, 1952, that the place be retained as an historic site.

Assemblyman Robert W. Pomeroy, of Dutchess county, a member of the state committee, announced the decision yesterday.

New York Synod Gives $370,836 Report Shows

New York, Jan. 30 (AP)—The New York Synod of the United Lutheran Church in America contributed $370,836 to the church's budgeted income in 1951, it was announced today.

Edmund F. Wagner, church treasurer, said the Synod comprises New York state and New England.

The amount compares with $411,596.62 the previous year, when New Jersey was a part of the Synod. New Jersey now is a separate Synod.

Wagner said the contributions in 1951 actually represented an increase of about $30,000 for the New York-New England area.

Total contributions to the budgeted income by the church's 33 Synods in the United States and Canada were $4,392,933, an increase of more than 10 per cent over 1950.

The budgeted income supports the church's missionary, educational and service ministries and is separate from funds raised for use by synods and congregations locally.

Be Stern With Russia, Fire Acheson, Cut Aid American Legion Is Told

One speaker at the 33rd annual legislative dinner of the New York Department, American Legion, called for a warning to Russia and another said Dean Acheson should resign as secretary of state or be replaced.

The event took place at the Hotel Ten Eyck, Albany, and was attended by Legionnaires from all sections of the state, including posts from all areas in Ulster county.

At their annual mid-winter meeting preceding the dinner, state executive officers of the Legion announced the state convention would be held in Saratoga Springs July 31, Aug. 1 and 2.

The national convention will be held in New York city Aug. 24-28, National Commander Donald R. Wilson of Clarksburg, W. Va., said.

World Warn Russia

Governor Thomas E. Dewey called on free nations to mark out a defense perimeter and warn Soviet Russia and her satellites to keep out.

Dewey declared: "If we stay out of our defense perimeter they will stay out because they don't want atom bombs on Peking."

"We've got to mean it," he said. Besides calling for the resignation of Acheson, Commander Wilson urged the discontinuance of Marshall Plan aid.

Dewey urged that the United States and its allies demarcate a defense perimeter to embrace all the area between Alaska and New Zealand—including Japan and Formosa.

Must Protect Japan

"If we don't," Dewey concluded, "Japan cannot live and our defenses will border on Hawaii and the coast of California and it will be too late."

The Republican leader proposed that the United States negotiate a mutual defense alliance in the Pacific similar to the North Atlantic treaty. Dewey also urged that the members of the proposed alliance issue a warning that if there was another case of aggression in the Pacific, the invader would be attacked with "every weapon at our command."

"The formal resolution adopted by the American Legion nationally does not refer to any person in the State Department specifically," Commander Wilson continued, "but I say it with emphasis."

The blond, 34-year-old boyish-looking veteran, who was elected national commander at the 33rd Legion convention last October in Miami, also urged the discontinuance of Marshall Plan aid.

"We believe," he said, "the time has come when financial aid to the Marshall Plan must be discontinued. The fundamental purpose of the plan was to stem the spread of communism and to buy friends."

Plan Ineffective

"But it is certainly questionable whether we have been able to halt the spread of communism because the Reds have been grabbing more and more."

"In addition, when we find ourselves in such situations as exists in Korea, those we have tried to buy as friends tell us what we must do and what we cannot do."

Commander Wilson said the nations in Europe that have threatened to go Communist if financial aid was not forthcoming from this country would bend effort to avoid such an occurrence if the matter came to an issue.

So far as concerns Communistic infiltration into high positions of this government, Commander Wilson said:

"We would not endeavor to make statements where we do not have the facts. Nevertheless, I am of the conviction that every effort should be made to remove anyone whose loyalty is questionable. This pertains not only to the State Department, but to all departments of the government."

Would Use Every Weapon

The Commander said he and the Legion have little hope the Korean peace negotiations "will resolve any of the fundamental problems."

He said that all weapons now at our disposal should be used in Korea so the war can be won militarily as promptly as possible.

In advocating the bombing of Manchuria and a naval blockade of China, the national commander explained:

"When this country went into the Korean fight, we ran World War and if we were prepared to take that chance then, there seems to be no indication that we have since grown weaker."

"We do believe an all-out effort in Korea will provoke World War III. When Russia believes she can win a war with the United States, she will not need a pretense. She will strike the same as did Japan in World War II."

City's Fire Loss

which becomes effective in 1954. This requires a second means of exit from all multiple dwellings and will affect a large percentage of buildings in Kingston.

The total insurance carried on buildings and contents involved in all fires was $2,080,025.

463 Calls Answered

The department responded to 463 calls including 54 bell alarms, one of which was a second alarm, 39 false alarms, 314 telephone alarms, 16 no cause for alarm, 25 verbal reports, three calls for investigation of fires quenched by citizens, five mutual aid calls out of the city and 47 emergency calls.

Highest among causes for calls was 96 for grass, rubbish and brush fires. Others were 45 for auto and truck fires, 36 for oil burners out of adjustment, 8 chimney fires, 10 for dump fires, 12 for short circuits in electric fixtures, 11 for ignited roasts and drippings, 7 for electric wires burning in poles and trees, 14 caused by cigarettes, 6 refrigerator fires, and 7 for electric wires burning on poles or trees.

Other causes for calls were 3 for children playing with matches, 3 for delayed ignition in oil burners, one for a fire caused by a television wire being struck by lightning, and many others including a fire in a boys' hut.

Emergency Aid Given

Emergency calls during the year varied from the usual cat-in-a-tree type and on one instance firemen were called to get a man out of a tree. Four calls were to assist persons locked out of apartments.

Another among the unusual was a call to assist a bird which had become caught in a tree by a piece of string, and one to get a raccoon out of a tree. The firemen helped four cats out of trees.

The chief's report on classification of buildings in which fires occurred showed 91 in frame dwellings, nine in brick, 12 in frame apartments, four in frame mercantile apartments, and eight in brick mercantile apartments. Three fires were in brick factory structures and three in brick mercantile office structures. Two were in frame garages and three in brick hotels.

The total insurance on buildings

involved in fires was $448,325 and the total fire loss was $71,606.26. Total insurance on contents was $147,900 and the fire loss on contents was $32,472.83.

Value of insurance on buildings for incipient fires in buildings for which the department was not called was $1,516,500, and the fire loss was $702,220. Insurance on contents was $167,300, and fire loss on contents, $3,257.

Out of City Calls

Calls out of the city included one on March 31, 1951, to give assistance to persons stranded by high water on Esopus avenue, a call to Hurley Feb. 1, one to Bloomington Feb. 13, to Port Jervis Dec. 12 and South Rondout Dec. 19.

Of the 963 inspections made by the department, 437 were in dance halls and theatres, 446 buildings, and 80 investigations of complaints.

The report shows 13,550 feet of 1½-inch hose used, 41,350 feet of 2½-inch hose, 1,509 feet of ladders raised, 12 salvage covers spread and 15¼ engine pumping hours at fires. Considerable chemicals, dry powder, Indian pumps and brooms were used.

The building report, which was published earlier this month, showed 550 permits issued at a total estimated cost of $2,846,992. This was $2,034,478 under that of 1950 because of a heavier public building program that year.

The chief thanked officers and members of the paid department for their "cooperation and efficient work" also Mayor Oscar V. Nease and members of the fire board, and two department chaplains, the local press and radio, several city departments and the citizens of the city.

Is 43rd Report

The summation of the year's work was the department's 43rd annual report.

Mention was also made of the two 500-gallon-per-minute pumps bought during the year, one for the John N. Cordts Hose Company and one for the Rapid Fire Company. These, he said, add to the department's efficiency.

"I again recommend the purchase of a piece of equipment each year until the department is modernized," the chief said. "Pumping capacity is very important in times of emergency. It may be necessary to relay water a mile or more and from different sources of supply."

Enduring Peace

New Salem,
January 28, 1952

Editor, The Freeman:

If for any one of various reasons let us remember that there is only one Creator and one peace giver. I read in the papers a few days ago that a Republican senator said General Eisenhower is the only man that can bring about a durable peace. This is not encouraging, but rather erroneous.

Durable means not perishing, stable, lasting. Therefore, let us remember it is only God, The Great Creator of Heaven and Earth, the only true Deity, who can bring about a lasting peace and not our puny politicians. The beginning of 1952 finds the hearts of the people still filled with fear. Another year has passed without any of the major problems of the world being solved. The distress of nations with perplexity, prophesied by Jesus is just as distressing and perplexing now as it was a year ago.

Many of the world's greatest scientists in this and other countries have worked feverishly to perfect instruments of destruction even more terrible than those now in use, with each nation wondering when the other might be crazy enough to make a major attack and where.

This, then as we look ahead into the year 1952 let us put our hope and trust in God. And remember these are His words: Be still and know that I am God. I will be exalted among the nations. I will be exalted in the earth. How scarce indeed has been the instrument of peace and good will toward man and how hapless the world has been without it.

Counting Is Real Asset for Defense

Finding the right defense is sometimes a matter of counting the tricks declarer can make. Today's hand illustrates this point.

West opened the seven of spades, and East won with the king. East returned the four of spades. South played low, and West won with the jack.

West now realized that a spade continuation would do him no good. East would have returned his fourth-best spade if he had held four or more cards in the suit. Since East had actually returned the four of spades it was clear that East had started with fewer than four spades. Hence South still had queen-eight of spades after two rounds had been played.

West had already won two spade tricks and could win a third whenever he chose. He could also depend on taking the ace of hearts as a fourth defensive trick. Where was the fifth defensive trick?

West was afraid to lead a heart because South had bid that suit. So West led a diamond, and South rattled off nine tricks in clubs and diamonds with great speed and equally great happiness.

As West found out, a diamond lead was fatal if South had that king. A heart lead was correct because it would succeed if East had the king of hearts and because it would not be fatal if East had the king of diamonds.

Suppose for example, that West leads a heart and discovers that he has led right up to South's strong suit. South wins that trick and can take five clubs and a diamond—only seven tricks.

If South tries to set up additional hearts, West can take his ace of hearts and shift to diamonds. Now declarer cannot get out of dummy without giving East the king of diamonds, which spells his doom.

Distinguished Speaker Will Outline Blueprint For Peace at Dinner Club Meeting, February 6 To Be Guest Speaker

HATTIE MAY PAVLO

Hattie May Pavlo, actress, playwright, public speaker and protagonist of world peace, will be the guest of honor and speaker at the next meeting of the Kingston National Dinner Club in the Governor Clinton Hotel on Wednesday, Feb. 6, at 6:30 p. m. A member of the Board of Governors of the Atlantic Union Committee and chairman of its speakers bureau, Mrs. Pavlo has chosen for her topic, Blueprint for Peace.

For many years she has been interested in public speaking, in speech in the theatre and in world peace. She was born in Atlanta, Ga., but grew up in the Far West and was graduated from the University of California. A former teacher, she has coached dramatics at the University of Nevada and taught speech at the University of California and New York University.

In recent years she has been giving more and more of her time to the affairs of the Atlantic Union Committee. Besides directing the activities of the speakers for the organization, she also spends a great deal of time on the platform, herself, and she generally speaks in all sections of the United States at least once each year.

Prerequisite

Miss Pavlo has also represented the organization abroad. During the summer of 1950 she went to Europe to address the convention of the International Federation of Women Lawyers in Rome and her Atlantic Union tour took her through France, England, and Scotland. During the summer of 1951 she organized the Irish Committee for the Atlantic Union and as the guest of honor and speaker on the subject of the Atlantic Union at a dinner given by the British House of Lords, has the prestige of being one of the few women ever invited to address that group.

Because of the nationwide interest in world peace and the fine reputation which Mrs. Pavlo enjoys as a worker in that field, it is expected that a large turnout of members will be on hand for the next dinner meeting.

Memberships are still available in the Dinner Club association. Anyone interested in becoming a member may telephone Warren F. Smith, secretary, 1819.

History of Jewelry Explored and Work Exhibited by Local Craftsman Monday

Mrs. Robert T. Shellenberger, 209 Albany avenue, well known artist in the field of crafts, explored the history of jewelry and exhibited her completed work Monday afternoon at a meeting of the Twentieth Century Club.

She also displayed original drawings showing the evolution of a design for a necklace and the partially completed article, as well as tools and materials used in her work.

Ornaments were made and fashioned by man for personal adornment since the beginning of time. Mrs. Shellenberger told her audience the discovery of such ornaments among the remains of Neolithic pile dwellings of ten and twelve thousand years ago provides evidence that this was so, she said. Continuing, "there is every reason to believe that these early lake dwellers took great pride in their hair, and that the pins and ornaments of bone which were found were used in its dressing and decoration. They also wore necklaces made of teeth."

Development

At a later stage of development these people were able to make use of metal and, with the coming of the Bronze Age, the use of gold, rare stones, jet and amber, added very greatly to the number and variety of man's personal adornments. These ornaments, usually of solid gold and geometric in design, show good taste and exceptional skill in craftsmanship.

As civilization progressed the art of the goldsmith and jeweler reached a very high state of perfection. Many beautiful specimens have been recovered from Egypt, Assyria, Greece, Etruria, Rome, Cyprus, Mexico and Peru, and afford us the opportunity to appreciate the wonderful skill both in design and craftsmanship exhibited by these early craftsmen.

In the Egyptian sarcophagi, such as were found in Tutankhamen's tomb, and later in the great tomb of Ra Wer, necklaces, rings, hair ornaments, bracelets and charms are numerous, some of them dating from about 7000 B.C. All of them are beautifully fashioned and some of them are set with gems. Oval-shaped gems, cut to a scarab, or beetle-like form are common in later Egyptian work, the scarab being regarded as an emblem of eternity.

Early Greek

Most of the early Greek specimens are formed of thin gold-plate, upon which are delicate designs in very fine wire, or small grains of gold finely soldered to the plate. Sprays of ivy, vine and myrtle formed of thin gold-plate fixed to a supporting band are often found. Greek gems are usually very highly finished, and very refined in subject and treatment. Most of them are in intaglio, that is, cut in or sunk, although others are of cameo form, or cut in relief. The subjects are generally mythological.

In work discovered in Etruria, grain ornamentation has been carried to perfection. This is probably due to Phoenician and Greek influence.

Roman jewelry was on a more massive scale than any that preceded it, although it shows Greek influence.

Other Types

The delicate filigree work made from very fine wire and incised in its formation, is characteristic of India, where traditional patterns have been handed down for generations.

In the Celtic area ornaments of solid gold reveal a remarkable delicacy of handwork, the Irish work reaching a high standard both in design and execution. The Tara brooch is a typical example. It was not until the Italian Renaissance that the art of gem engraving was revived. The jewelry of this period was very largely cast work, the ornaments being afterwards enameled and set with precious stones.

The decline in the art of the jeweler after the 16th Century was attributed to craftsmen copying others rather than using their own creative gifts. To clarify her remarks, Mrs. Shellenberger quoted Ralph Waldo Emerson, in his essay on Self Reliance, "Trust on yourself, never imitate. Your own gift you can present every moment with the cumulative force of a whole life's cultivation; but of the adopted talent of another you have only an extemporaneous half possession. That which each can do best, none but his Maker can teach him."

Raises Standards

Praising the handwork of the craftsman, the speaker continued, "the handwork of the craftsman is raising the standard of the machine made product, while maintaining its own excellence in design and workmanship." At this point she referred to Emil F. Kronquist, author of several books on Metalcraft and Jewelry and a teacher of metalry at the Milwaukee Vocational School. Among other things quoted from his writings, she read, "Machinery today has robbed us of the urge to be practical with our hands, but no machine has ever been designed, and no design has been successful unless the material of its application was thoroughly understood by the designer."

Search Ends

As to her own interest in the making of jewelry and silversmithing, Mrs. Shellenberger said, "all of my life I had been hunting for a means of self expression, something to do with my hands particularly. I sewed, carved, did dozens of things, all of which I enjoyed and in some I grew fairly adept, but always there was a little less than complete satisfaction. One day, at a small college in the Southern mountains where I was working, I did a bit of metal work, made some buttons and three plates, and I knew then I had found something that called for further exploration."

Upon making this discovery, he moved to New York and began her studies at the Craft Student's League. She studied jewelry for 14 years with Miss Adda Husted Andersen and metalry for two years under Lauritz Christian Eichner, both of whom she described as master craftsmen and teachers. At the same time Mrs. Shellenberger studied design for two years with Louis Wolchok.

"I knew that never as long as I lived would I be free from the desire to work in metals," she said. Often questioned as to the patience required to do such painstaking work, Mrs. Shellenberger described it as "sheer bliss." Further, "I can remember times, in the days before my marriage, when I came home from the office so weary I thought I wouldn't be able to make it, but after getting home I would pick up a piece of metal and become so interested in sawing, filing and fashioning some idea in metal that time would cease to exist."

This artist works mostly in sterling silver but sometimes uses copper and brass. These materials were displayed on a tray with unset stones of various sizes and shapes, as well as some of the first tools used in making jewelry. A photograph of brass candlesticks designed and made by Mrs. Shellenberger, for a chapel in Amarillo, Tex. and a tray containing pieces of finished jewelry were also shown.

To conclude her discourse, Mrs. Shellenberger again referred to Emerson and said, "the good craftsman never copies, he may get inspiration from others, but his designs are his own."

Hattie May Pavlo, actress, playwright, public speaker and protagonist of world peace, will be the guest of honor and speaker at the next meeting of the Kingston National Dinner Club in the Governor Clinton Hotel on Wednesday, Feb. 6, at 6:30 p. m. A member of the Board of Governors of the Atlantic Union Committee and chairman of its speakers bureau, Mrs. Pavlo has chosen for her topic, Blueprint for Peace.

For many years she has been interested in public speaking, in speech in the theatre and in world peace. She was born in Atlanta, Ga., but grew up in the Far West and was graduated from the University of California. A former teacher, she has coached dramatics at the University of Nevada and taught speech at the University of California and New York University.

In recent years she has been giving more and more of her time to the affairs of the Atlantic Union Committee. Besides directing the activities of the speakers for the organization, she also spends a great deal of time on the platform, herself, and she generally speaks in all sections of the United States at least once each year.

Prestige

Miss Pavlo has also represented the organization abroad. During the summer of 1950 she went to Europe to address the convention of the International Federation of Women Lawyers in Rome and her Atlantic Union tour took her through France, England and Scotland. During the summer of 1951 she organized the Irish Committee for the Atlantic Union and as the guest of honor and speaker on the subject of the Atlantic Union at a dinner given by the British House of Lords, has the prestige of being one of the few women ever invited to address that group.

Because of the nationwide interest in world peace and the fine reputation which Mrs. Pavlo enjoys as a worker in that field, it is expected that a large turnout of members will be on hand for the next dinner meeting.

Memberships are still available in the Dinner Club association. Anyone interested in becoming a member may telephone Warren F. Smith, secretary, 1819.

History of Jewelry Explored and Work Exhibited by Local Craftsman Monday

Mrs. Robert T. Shellenberger, 209 Albany avenue, well known artist in the field of crafts, explored the history of jewelry and exhibited her completed work Monday afternoon at a meeting of the Twentieth Century Club. She also displayed original drawings showing the evolution of a design for a necklace and the partially completed article, as well as tools and materials used in her work.

Ornaments were made and fashioned by man for personal adornment since the beginning of time. Mrs. Shellenberger told her audience. The discovery of such ornaments among the remains of Neolithic pile dwellings of ten and twelve thousand years ago provides evidence that this was so, she said. Continuing, "there is every reason to believe that these early lake dwellers took great pride in their hair, and that the pins and ornaments of bone which were found were used in its dressing and decoration. They also wore necklaces made of teeth."

Development

At a later stage of development these people were able to make use of metal and, with the coming of the Bronze Age, the use of gold, rare stones, jet and amber, added very greatly to the number and variety of man's personal adornments. These adornments, usually of solid gold and geometric in design, show good taste and exceptional skill in craftsmanship.

As civilization progressed the art of the goldsmith and jeweler reached a very high state of perfection. Many beautiful specimens have been recovered from Egypt, Assyria, Greece, Etruria, Rome, Cyprus, Mexico and Peru, and afford us the opportunity to appreciate the wonderful skill both in design and craftsmanship exhibited by these early craftsmen.

In the Egyptian sarcophagi, such as were found in Tutankhamen's tomb, and later in the great tomb of Ra Wer, necklaces, rings, hair ornaments, bracelets and charms are numerous, some of them dating from about 7000 B.C. ## Kingston Hospital Auxiliary Will Take Part in City's 300th Anniversary

At a meeting last night of the Kingston Hospital Auxiliary, members present voted to participate as an organization in the 300th anniversary of the founding of the city and also to have a booth at the Lions Club exposition in March. Mrs. Peter D. Corsones, president, presided at the meeting.

It was decided to omit decorations for the annual ball which will take place Saturday evening in the Governor Clinton Hotel. The members were unanimous in their belief that the money ordinarily expended for this purpose should be used in "the auxiliary's" efforts to increase the welfare and happiness of patients in the Kingston Hospital.

Final plans for the dance were formed and Mrs. Sherwood E. Davis, dance committee treasurer, reported an excellent advance ticket sale.

Mrs. Corsones reported that the renovations and decorating have been completed and new furniture installed in hospital room 202 through funds received as a bequest from the estate of the late Mrs. Marion Howells. Mrs. Corsones also expressed appreciation to Mrs. Chester Van Gaasbeck, who generously donated her time in behalf of the auxiliary to wrap and distribute Christmas gifts to patients in the wards of the hospital. These gifts were purchased with funds given annually by Alexander B. Shulteis.

Mrs. Alfred W. Harder and Mrs. Vincent P. Amatrano were hostesses during the social period which followed the meeting. The table was attractively decorated with tall white candles and a centerpiece of white carnations, salmon colored gladioli and gypsophila.

Mrs. Francis LoGalbo was introduced as a new member.

Keenan-Wager

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Baranski of Wallkill announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Melba Eileen Keenan, to Lester A. Wager, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Wager of Modena.

The bride-elect, a graduate of the Wallkill Central High School, class of '51, is employed as secretary in the office of the Upstate Counties Abstract and Servicing Corporation of Newburgh.

Mr. Wager, also a graduate of the Wallkill Central High School, class of '51, is associated with his father in the dairy business.

Judge Lambastes Girl Who Accepted Money From Levy

New York, Jan. 30 (AP)—"Boy wants girl . . . and girl wants diamonds, furs and motor cars . . . and consequently larceny, embezzlement, forgery and romance walk hand-in-hand down 51st street."

This was State Supreme Court Justice James B. McCall's capsule survey of showgirl Rosemary Williamson's 13 months as the woman in the life of textile salesman Sidney M. Levy.

McCall yesterday awarded the beautiful 23-year-old brunette $2,500 in insurance on a stolen fur coat and diamond ring. But along with the award he gave her a stern lecture, telling her she didn't deserve a cent and that she "better get some of that old-time religion."

Levy, whom Rosemary once called a "creep," was not in court to see his one-time Broadway flame weep copiously at the judge's remarks.

An insurance company had contested a $3,850 claim by the showgirl, on the ground that the two stolen items were part of the $25,000 gifts the 27-year-old Levy lavished on her with money he swindled on a fake business deal.

The judge said the insurance company must pay her because the law is designed to protect both the wrongdoers and the righteous. McCall said her insurance premiums were paid up, and therefore the company was liable.

Then McCall started scolding: "There can be no doubt that Miss Williamson knew the funds were not honestly come by and nevertheless, she took them and used them for her own aggrandizement, which . . . makes her morally as guilty of larceny as if she had taken the money."

"I didn't know," the shapely Corpus Christi, Tex., lass burst out. "I didn't know he had taken the money."

Describing himself as "old enough to be your father," the judge continued:

"Sidney Levy claims he was so infatuated, bewitched and enslaved by the potent charms of this Winter Garden Cleopatra (she played at the Winter Garden Theatre in 'Peep Show') that in order to keep her in his constant bidding, and he was so reduced to abject subjugation that he conspired with her to use trick, artifice, and device in embezzling some $53,000 from divers persons . . ."

Levy is on 10-year probation on his promise to repay the embezzled money, most of which he got from his father and two dentists, one of whom had the showgirl for a patient.

Marriage Is Annulled

Atlanta, Jan. 30 (AP)—Pvt. Walter B. Dixon, an "Enoch Arden" of the Korean war, is alive, a judge ruled yesterday in annulling the second marriage of the soldier's pretty, blonde wife, Judge E. E. Andrews of Fulton County Superior Court voided Mrs. Agnes Dixon Sasser's marriage to Pvt. William Sasser after deciding that Dixon, first reported killed in Korean fighting, is actually a prisoner of the Chinese Communists. Mrs. Dixon asked the annulment after receiving a letter from Dixon Jan. 2. She told the court defense department experts confirmed the letter was written by the husband she once believed dead.

EX-MARRIAGE SITUATION

Among the thousands of letters that have during these many years been sent me, the following is certainly one of the most extraordinary: "My wife has been previously married. I have supported her two sons for almost 18 years. One son is now going to be married and has told the mother of his fiancée that he wants not only his father but his father's present wife to be invited. I don't want them at the wedding principally because the last time my wife and her ex-husband had occasion to meet at the funeral of a relative, he kissed her in my presence and that of everyone else, which I thought uncalled for. I'm sure at a wedding he won't know how to keep his place. Am I justified in refusing to invite them?"

As a matter of fact, you have no control over the situation. The bridegroom's family does not give the wedding—ever! If you had a stepdaughter instead of a stepson, then the wedding would be given by you and you would have a right to control the list. But coming to the hostesses and say good-bye, or do you simply leave without saying anything?

Answer: You simply leave without saying anything, unless you happen to be in the same room and no one is talking to them at the time.

Rehearsal Party

Dear Mrs. Post: I am going to be married soon and after the rehearsal at church I intend to have a buffet supper at my house for the wedding party. Four of the attendants are married. Is it necessary to invite their wives (and husbands) to this get-together?

Answer: Very definitely—yes!

Questions are often asked about formal wedding procedure. Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail. Her leaflet, E-2, includes information regarding the bride's bouquet, proposing the

Birthrate Brings Problem, Lions Told

A continued rise in national birthrate is posing a serious problem for educators, Arthur J. Laidlaw, superintendent of schools, told members of the Kingston Lions Club at a luncheon meeting on Tuesday at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

Although it was generally believed that the birth rate would taper off after reaching the post war peak, Laidlaw pointed out that the trend the past two years has been upward. He cited national, state and local figures illustrating the estimated future needs for school facilities and teachers.

Laidlaw pointed out that the local board of education "very wisely" surveyed this city's needs several years ago and embarked upon a plan to provide the needed facilities. First step in the plan was the completion in September, 1950, of the addition to the vocational school building. Second step was the erection of the new George Washington elementary school, which opened on Monday.

Public education was termed by Laidlaw as the "greatest barrier to the propaganda of communism."

Stuttgart, Germany, Jan. 30 (AP)—The West German state parliament of Wuertemberg-Baden voted today to request American authorities to set a curfew for American occupation troops because of a "growing number of incidents." ## Kingston Hospital Auxiliary Will Take Part in City's 300th Anniversary

At a meeting last night of the Kingston Hospital Auxiliary, members present voted to participate as an organization in the 300th anniversary of the founding of the city and also to have a booth at the Lions Club exposition in March. Mrs. Peter D. Corsones, president, presided at the meeting.

It was decided to omit decorations for the annual ball which will take place Saturday evening in the Governor Clinton Hotel. The members were unanimous in their belief that the money ordinarily expended for this purpose should be used in "the auxiliary's work to increase the welfare and happiness of patients in the Kingston Hospital."

Final plans for the dance were formed and Mrs. Sherwood E. Davis, dance committee treasurer, reported an excellent advance ticket sale.

Mrs. Corsones reported that the renovations and decorating have been completed and new furniture installed in hospital room 202 through funds received as a bequest from the estate of the late Mrs. Marion Howells. Mrs. Corsones also expressed appreciation to Mrs. Chester Van Gansbeek, who generously donated her time in behalf of the auxiliary to wrap and distribute Christmas gifts to patients in the wards of the hospital. These gifts were purchased with funds given annually by Alexander B. Shufeldt.

Mrs. Vincent P. Amatrano were hostesses during the social period which followed the meeting. The table was attractively decorated with tall white candles and a centerpiece of white carnations, salmon colored gladioli and gypsophila.

Mrs. Francis LaGalbo was introduced as a new member.

Keenan-Wager

The bride-elect, a graduate of the Walkkill Central High School, class of '51, is employed as secretary in the office of the Upstate Counties Abstract and Servicing Corporation of Newburgh.

Mr. Wager, also a graduate of the Walkkill Central High School, class of '51, is associated with his father in the dairy business.

Harder, auxiliary member, before room 202 at the hospital, which has been redecorated and equipped with new furniture through funds bequeathed to the auxiliary by the late Mrs. Marion Howells. On the door to the room, a plaque has been affixed as a memorial to Mrs. Howells. (Freeman photo.)

Judge Lambastes Girl Who Accepted Money From Levy

New York, Jan. 30 (AP)—"Boy wants girl . . . and girl wants diamonds, furs and motor cars . . . and consequently larceny, embezzlement, forgery and romance walk hand-in-hand down 51st street."

This was State Supreme Court Justice James B. McNally's capsule survey of showgirl Rosemary Williamson's 13 months as the woman in the life of textile salesman Sidney M. Levy.

McNally yesterday awarded the beautiful 23-year-old brunette $2,500 in insurance on a stolen fur coat and diamond ring. But along with the award he gave her a stern lecture, telling her she didn't deserve a cent and that she "better get some of that old-time religion."

Levy, whom Rosemary once called a "creep," was not in court to see his one-time Broadway flame weep copiously at the judge's remarks.

An insurance company had contested a $3,850 claim by the showgirl, on the ground that the two stolen items were part of the $25,000 gifts the 27-year-old Levy lavished on her with money he swindled on a fake business deal.

The judge said the insurance company must pay her, because the law is designed to protect both the "wrongdoers and the righteous." McNally said he insured premiums were paid up, and therefore the company was liable.

Then McNally started scolding: "There can be no doubt that Miss Williamson knew the funds were not honestly come by and, nevertheless, she took them and used them for her own aggrandizement, which . . . makes her morally as guilty of larceny as if she had taken the money."

"I Didn't Know" the shapely Corpus Christi, Tex., lass burst out. "I didn't know he had taken the money."

Describing himself as "old enough to be your father," the judge continued:

"Sidney Levy claims he was so initiated, bewitched and enslaved by the potent charms of this Winter Garden Cleopatra (she played at the Winter Garden Theatre in 'Peep Show') that in order to keep her affections he was willing to do her constant bidding; and he was so reduced to abject subjugation that he conspired with her to use trick, artifice, and device in embezzling some $53,000 from divers persons . . ."

Levy is on 10-year probation on his promise to repay the embezzled money, most of which he got from his father and two dentists, one of whom had the showgirl for a patient.

Marriage Is Annulled

Atlanta, Jan. 30 (AP)—Pvt. Walter B. Dixon, an "Enoch Arden" of the Korean war, is alive, a judge ruled yesterday in annulling the second marriage of the soldier's pretty, blonde wife, Judge E. E. Andrews of Fulton County Superior Court voided Mrs. Agnes Dixon Sasser's marriage to Pfc. William Sasser after deciding that Dixon, first reported killed in Korean fighting, is actually a prisoner of the Chinese Communists. Mrs. Dixon asked the annulment after receiving a letter from Dixon Jan. 2. She told the court defense department experts confirmed the letter was written by the husband she once believed dead.

EX-MARRIAGE SITUATION

Among the thousands of letters that have during these many years been sent me, the following is certainly one of the most extraordinary: "My wife has been previously married. I have supported her two sons for almost 18 years. One son is now going to be married and has told the mother of his fiancée that he wants not only his father but his father's present wife to be invited. I don't want them at the wedding principally because the last time my wife and her ex-husband had occasion to meet at the funeral of a relative, he kissed her in my presence and that of everyone else, which I thought uncalled for. I'm sure at a wedding he won't know how to keep his place. Am I justified in refusing to invite them?"

As a matter of fact, you have no control over the situation. The bridegroom's family does not give the wedding—ever! If you had a stepdaughter instead of a stepson, then the wedding would be given by you and you would have a right to control the list. But considering that you are more going to be guests in the house of the bride's family, and your stepson has asked that his father and stepmother be invited, you cannot possibly ask that his father be omitted from the list of guests.

Bidding Hostesses Good-bye

Dear Mrs. Post: At a large tea given at the country club with two hostesses and a guest of honor receiving, it is necessary to return to the line before leaving to thank the hostesses and say good-bye, or do you simply leave without saying anything?

Answer: You simply leave without saying anything, unless you happen to be in the same room and no one is talking to them at the time.

Rehearsal Party

Dear Mrs. Post: I am going to be married soon and after the rehearsal at church I intend to have a buffet supper at my house for the wedding party. Four of the attendants are married. Is it necessary to invite their wives (and husbands) to this get-together?

Kingston High Sets Scoring Record Under Kias to Crush Blues, 93-50

Hooker Scores 32; Jayvees Win, 54-47

Kingston High achieved its highest scoring total in Coach G. Warren Kias' 25-year coaching regime at the Maroon institution with a crushing 93-50 conquest of Sam Kalloch's Poughkeepsie Blues last night at the municipal auditorium.

The former record of 87 points was set against Fallsburg Central during the 1949-50 campaign.

Leroy Hooker scored 32 points in three periods and 12 of the 13 players used by Kias figured in the scoring.

Coach Kalloch admitted after the contest it was the worst defeat ever inflicted on Poughkeepsie in his 31 years as mentor.

Some of the lustre was rubbed off the Maroon performance because three of the Poughkeepsie regulars — high scoring Johnny Ripo, Ed Gattine and Bill Elwell — were missing from the lineup due to illness and four other varsity squad players were sick. Leroy Johnson, of course, had been banished several days earlier.

Still it was a magnificent exhibition of shooting power, even in the final quarter when five substitutes riddled the Poughkeepsie defenses for 10 consecutive points.

Newburgh Wins

The victory left the Kiasmen 3½ games behind the Glittering Goldbacks of Newburgh Academy who remained undefeated with an impressive 59-55 victory in Middletown. The Goldbacks trailed twice, by 4-0 and 32-31, but finished strong to notch their 10th consecutive win.

Reeling off quarter totals of 18-22-30-22, the Kiasmen were in complete charge all the way. It was never a contest after the Maroons grabbed an early lead and were ahead 18-5 at the quarter. Hooker scored 11 points in the first period and garnered half of Kingston's 30 total in the third.

Ahead 40-22 at the half, the Kiasmen turned the game into a rout in the third period. Frank Koenig fouled out but there was no diminution of power as the subs poured it on.

At the start of the fourth period Kingston was operating with Harry La Forge, Bill DuBois, Monsey Telapas, Jack Haber and Hermie Sackler.

Kingston High Sets Scoring Record Under Kias to Crush Blues, 93-50

Hooker Scores 32; Jayvees Win, 54-47

Kingston High achieved its highest scoring total in Coach G. Warren Kias' 23-year coaching regime at the Maroon institution with a crushing 93-50 conquest of Sam Kallach's Poughkeepsie Blues last night at the municipal auditorium.

The former record of 87 points was set against Fallsburg Central during the 1949-50 campaign.

Leroy Hooker scored 32 points in three periods and 12 of the 13 plays used by Kias figured in the scoring.

Coach Kallach admitted after the contest it was the worst defeat ever inflicted on Poughkeepsie in his 31 years as mentor.

Some of the lustre was rubbed off the Maroon performance because three of the Poughkeepsie regulars—high scoring Johnny Ripo, Ed Gattine and Bill Elwell—were missing from the lineup due to illness and four other varsity squad players were sick. Leroy Johnson, of course, had been banished several days earlier.

Still it was a magnificent exhibition of shooting power, even in the final quarter when five substitutes rattled the Poughkeepsie defenses for 10 consecutive points.

Newburgh Wins
The victory left the Kiasmen 31 games behind the Glittering Goldbacks of Newburgh Academy who remained undefeated with an impressive 39-35 victory in Middletown. The Goldbacks trailed twice, by 4-0 and 32-31, but finished strong to notch their 10th consecutive win.

Reeling off quarter totals of 18-22-30-22, the Kiasmen were in complete charge all the way. It was never a contest after the Maroons grabbed an early lead and were ahead 18-5 at the quarter. Hooker scored 11 points in the first period and garnered half of Kingston's 30-total in the third.

Ahead 40-22 at the half, the Kiasmen turned the game into a rout in the third period. Frank Koenig fouled out but there was no diminution of power as the subs poured it on.

At the start of the fourth period Kingston was operating with Harry La Forge, Bill DuBois, Mousley Telepas, Jack Haber and Hermie Siekler.

The win was the sixth in nine starts for Coach John Gilligan's cagers.

Walcott Ponders Coast Offer of $250,000 To Defend Title Against Harry Matthews

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 30 (AP)—Felix Bocchiechio, manager of world heavyweight champion Jersey Joe Walcott, was scheduled to confer today with an actor's agent in Washington, D. C., about a $250,000 offer to Walcott to defend his title against Harry (Kid) Matthews.

Bocchiechio made the announcement as he and the champion stopped here last night on the way to a personal appearance engagement at Lewistown, Pa.

Walcott then boxed a five-round exhibition with Jackie Burke of Pittsburgh, as some 600 persons looked on.

After the bout Walcott told the crowd that he was "not interested in money, but in saving the youth of the country, which is more important than defending my title."

Walcott has been ordered by the New York State Athletic Commission to sign for a title bout by Feb. 5 or forfeit the title in that state.

The proposed bout between Walcott and Matthews would be held in Los Angeles, Detroit or Las Vegas, Nev. The actor's agent was identified as Harry Hunt of Los Angeles.

Matthews is rated one of the top light-heavyweight contenders. Bocchiechio told reporters the offer was made by an actress and would carry additional fees for television rights. He did not identify the actress.

Jack Hurley, Matthews' manager, has said Matthews is willing to campaign as a heavyweight. Bocchiechio said that after the Washington conference he and Walcott will go to Florida to confer with Jim Norris, president of the International Boxing Club.

He said they will seek a release from contractual agreements with the IBC. Walcott has signed with the IBC giving that group his exclusive services for five years. Bocchiechio added.

He Norris agrees, Bocchiechio said Walcott will be ready to defend his title against Ezzard Charles, former heavyweight titleholder, or Rocky Marciano, Brockton, Mass., battler who recently kayoed Joe Louis.

Indianapolis, Jan. 30 (AP)—Mauri Rose, one of the best competitors in any sport, has retired from auto racing.

For the last 15 Memorial Day 500-mile races at Indianapolis Motor Speedway, the top drivers considered Rose the man to beat.

He won in 1947 and 1948 and was co-winner with Floyd Davis in 1941. He was leading in 1949, 20 miles from the finish, when a broken magneto strap forced him out of the race.

Two years ago, fire broke out in his pit while he was refueling. He leaped into the car with smoke and carbon dioxide fumes still swirling around the cockpit and roared back into the race.

A cocky little guy with a big moustache and bigger pipe, Rose ever knew fear he didn't show it. He smashed his car to pieces in the 1945 race. A few minutes later he was strolling calmly through the pits, charging his pipe.

Last Memorial Day his car lost a wheel and landed upside down in the infield. He survived because he knew how to hang on—and because he dropped into deep mud. Again he was back in the garage area a few minutes later showing no signs of nerves.

Hercules led 19-18 at the quarter, 39-38 at halftime and 59-58 going into the home stretch before it uncorked a 34-17 bulge in the closing period.

The victory put the Powdermen a full game ahead in the "A" standings. It was Potters' second loss in seven outings.

Warriors Retain Spoiler Role

(By The Associated Press)
The fourth-place Philadelphia Warriors have cast themselves as "spoilers" in the Eastern Division scramble of the National Basketball Association.

The Warriors nipped the second-place Boston Celtics, 97-96, last night to drop the Celtics 4½ games behind the league-leading Syracuse Nationals. In its two previous outings Philadelphia shaded Syracuse in overtime on Friday and then came back the following night to trip Boston.

Philadelphia, sparked by Paul Arizin's 32 points, led all the way, but had to withstand a valiant fourth-period rally by the Celtics to preserve the victory.

Boston coach Red Auerbach protested the game. The officials called a foul against the Warriors' Paul Arizin in the final second of play. Bob Cousy converted with time already out and the players on the sidelines.

Auerbach claimed the teams should have lined up under the basket on Cousy's foul try because there had to be at least a fraction of a second left thus setting the stage for a possible "tip in" tying field goal in the event Cousy missed.

The New York Knickerbockers, beset by injuries, were no match for the Indianapolis Olympians, who handed them a 106-72 setback at Louisville. The loss enabled Philadelphia to creep to within two games of New York.

Lanky Joe Graboski produced the season's highest Indianapolis individual scoring effort by caging 33 points. George Kaftan topped the Knicks with 13.

Toledo—Archie Moore, 175½, Toledo, outpointed Harold Johnson, 170½, Philadelphia, 10.

NEW PALTZ NEWS

Village Caucus Is Slated March 4th

New Paltz, Jan. 30.—March 4 is the date for the village caucus, set by the village board at its meeting Monday. The caucus will be held in the firemen's room in the Municipal building at 8 p. m.

The board is considering a proposal to build a village garage to house various village vehicles and equipment. At the present time, space for the equipment is rented, and it was felt that a very real saving could be realized by the village in being able to obtain tires, oil, gas, antifreeze, chains, batteries and other such items at cost. The board will investigate the probable cost of such a building, which it estimated might be around $8,500.

A group of New Paltz business men approached the board Monday night with the suggestion that delivery trucks be allowed to double park on Main street for the necessary length of time to complete deliveries. They felt that traffic regulations were being too stringently enforced in some cases. The board is drawing up a set of rules and regulations to be presented to the local police force which will be asked to meet with the board soon.

Because of the tremendous amount of time spent by board members and the mayor on village business, a motion was made to raise the salaries of the mayor and trustees to $600 and $400 respectively. Such a proposition must be made at least 20 days before election, and offered at a public hearing. Hearing on this question will be held at the time of the next board meeting, February 25, at 7:30 p. m.

It was reported that there was $1700 in unpaid taxes due the village. A motion was made to turn over the lists to an attorney for collection by March 1. After that date, the attorney will be authorized to put up the properties concerned for tax sale.

Other considerations discussed by the board were that of investigating the advisability of adding fluorine to the village water supply, and the raising of a bond issue, to be financed over a period of five years, to provide funds for village operation to fill the three month gap caused by the recent change of the fiscal year from March 1 to June 1.

fresh for a longer period before cleaning is necessary. The group will meet between 10:30 a. m. and 3 p. m.

Handwork done by local people, outside work and completed Home Bureau projects will be exhibited at the meeting. Mrs. John Glancy is in charge of the exhibit and promises an interesting variety.

New Salary Schedule For Teachers Adopted

New Paltz, Jan. 30.—A new teachers salary schedule with added conditional salary steps was adopted by the school board at a meeting at New Paltz high school, January 24.

Further details of the new schedule will be made public after the next meeting of the board, February 28, when continued study and more recommendations will be made.

Principal Bugar reported some changes in the teaching staff of the high school. Miss Georgia Swift is replacing Miss Florence Tretry as English teacher for the balance of the school year. ## Warriors Retain Spoiler Role

(By The Associated Press)

The fourth-place Philadelphia Warriors have cast themselves as "spoilers" in the Eastern Division scramble of the National Basketball Association.

The Warriors nipped the second-place Boston Celtics, 97-96, last night to drop the Celtics 4½ games behind the league-leading Syracuse Nationals. In its two previous outings Philadelphia shaded Syracuse in overtime on Friday and then came back the following night to trip Boston.

Philadelphia, sparked by Paul Arizin's 32 points, led all the way, but had to withstand a valiant fourth-period rally by the Celtics to preserve the victory.

Boston coach Red Auerbach protested the game. The officials called a foul against the Warriors' Paul Cousy in the final second of play. Bob Cousy converted with time already out and the players on the sidelines.

Auerbach claimed the teams should have lined up under the basket on Cousy's foul try because there had to be at least a fraction of a second left thus setting the stage for a possible "tip in" tying field goal in the event Cousy missed.

The New York Knickerbockers, beset by injuries, were no match for the Indianapolis Olympians, who handed them a 100-72 setback at Louisville. The less enabled Philadelphia to creep to within two games of New York.

Lanky Joe Graboski produced the season's highest Indianapolis individual scoring effort by caging 33 points. George Kaftan topped the Knicks with 13.

Toledo—Archie Moore, 175½, Toledo, outpointed Harold Johnson, 170½, Philadelphia, 10.

She Costs Cugat $152,000

Santa Monica, Calif., Jan. 30 (AP)—Mrs. Xavier Cugat won a divorce from her band leader husband after testifying he was jealous, ill-tempered and "kept me in a state of virtual slavery." She charged mental cruelty. The former Lorraine Allen, 33, said yesterday that when they were dancing together he would smile, call her sweet names and at the same time pinch her or dig his nails into her hands. Under a court-approved, properly settled, she receives $152,000 in alimony over a 10-year period and Cugat retains their $85,000 home here.

Ulster Hose Holds Banquet, Review of Program Is Given

Plans for establishing a water district in the town of Ulster, north of Kingston, were revealed at the fifth annual dinner of the members of Ulster Hose Company, No. 5, Inc., Saturday evening. The banquet, attended by members of the fire company, their wives and members of the Ladies' Auxiliary numbering 140, was held at the Pleasant Valley Inn.

Already surveys have been made as to the need, the tentative area of the water district has been defined and figures have been secured to give some idea as to the possible cost of such a project. The matter continues to be under advisement of a committee and Edward L. McCaffrey, consulting engineer for the City of Kingston, has been retained to study the plan.

Deputy Chief Harold Sanford of the Kingston Fire Department was guest speaker and during the evening presented to members of the company diplomas signifying their completion of the advanced course in fire fighting. Chief Sanford spoke on general firemanic matters.

Reviews Activities

Edward Dingley, president of Ulster Hose, presided, and during the evening gave a review of the activities of the company during the past year. He thanked Russell Smith and his committee, Messrs. LaGuardia and Reed for the banquet arrangements.

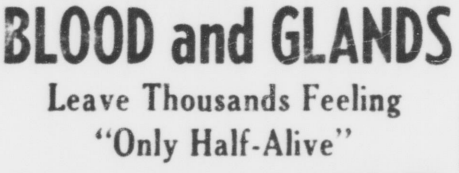

Dingley said the past year has been a very successful one for the company and called attention to the commissioning of their new truck, which had been purchased with the anticipation and foresight of a growing community. Engineer Kenneth Brannigan, who headed the committee, was thanked for his time and effort in bringing this matter to a successful conclusion.

An event which was secondary only to the new truck was the purchase and outfitting of an auxiliary tank truck. Emil Weiland was chairman of the committee which labored industriously to secure this necessary piece of equipment.

of equipment which had been under discussion for three years, Dingley said. The auxiliary truck provides the security of an additional 900 gallons of water immediately in the event of a fire where an adequate supply is not at hand.

Among the other items which Dingley reviewed was the organization of the fire police system under the direction of Samuel LaGuardia, chairman. This unit has already demonstrated its usefulness. Under Harold Machold the company sponsored a carnival during the past season with a good profit to the company. The annual fair under the co-chairmanship of John Offermann and Millard Davis enriched the treasury by some $2,000 and the Christmas cheer program, Ernest Peterson chairman, proved very successful.

Ulster Hose Company also sponsors a Boy Scout troop under the leadership of Russell Smith and tribute was paid to the parade and uniform committee. Next season the company will turn out in new uniforms.

Water District Planned

President Dingley referred to a project which has been under study for some time in the area, that of establishing a water district and the acquiring of a community water system. W. E. Davis is chairman of that committee and considerable study has been made.

With E. L. McCaffrey, consulting engineer, the committee has established tentative bounds for the water district and figures on costs and engineering data has been secured and will be presented to the taxpayers of the proposed water district. The district will generally, as laid out, include that section of the town of Ulster to the north of Kingston and extending to the bounds of Lake Katrine.

The proposed plan is for a supply from wells with a suitable storage tank to supply the customers of the water district. This area has been growing in population and there has been a growing demand for establishment of a water district from property owners.

Among those present who were complimented for their work on various projects were Sherwood Davis, chairman of the building committee which has under advisement an addition to the firehouse to make room for additional equipment as the need arises; James Krom, of the House committee, who also serves as chaplain of the company and who opened the meeting with prayer.

The social committee, Austin Brown and Gerald Woodvine, co-chairmen, and Mrs. M. T. Davis, president of the Ladies' Auxiliary, were complimented for their work during the past year.

Attending the meeting was W. T. Hooley, Jr., chairman of the by-laws committee and Russell Smith, both of whom were recentattack, but there was nothing to signify that it contained urgent news. So it was still in possession of an ordinary messenger distributing birthday greetings and similar traffic when the Japs came.

I asked how it came about that the corporal was only a corporal after all this time, but the colonel seemed indisposed to confide information which may reflect misgivings in a simple soldier's career. Something strange is going on here, Gen. Eddy has a good reputation and there is evidence that his Seventh Army is alert. But in expressing satisfaction over beginning to receive a new supply of trucks to replace a lot of patched and cannibalized rolling stock, he tells me that the first concern of his transport section will be to rush personnel out of the fighting zone back into France.

That meant the wives and children of officers and of non-commissioned grades who are entitled to the gentle and expensive considerations which the United States shows to family men on active service.

I asked what about German women and children. After all, now that we are chumming up with the Germans, who are the equal of any soldiers in the world, what will they think of a plan which recognizes the preciousness of American soldiers' wives and children but puts German soldiers' families in the category of expendables?

Is it, perhaps, that some authority has decided that German women don't object to rape?

Of course, this is their ancient native land and many would rather die here than live as displaced persons anywhere else, especially, perhaps, after personal observation of the status of DPs.

But there is mystery and an inconsistency behind all this. Gen. Eisenhower, himself, says this is a field army, not

'Brigadoon' Is Now On National Tour

The performance of the national company of "Brigadoon" on Tuesday, February 12 at the Kingston High School Auditorium under the local sponsorship of Kingston Rotary Club marks another milestone in the number of audiences who have seen this attraction. During its two year run on Broadway, "Brigadoon" played to over 500,000 people. After the first year of its New York engagement, a second company was sent to Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston, Dallas, Los Angeles, San Francisco and other large cities, coast to coast. At the same time, another company opened in London. Subsequently, the rights to produce the musical were leased to producers in France, Australia, Holland, Sweden and Denmark.

During the past summer, "Brigadoon" was performed in stock or by a touring company in 87 summer theatres. Everywhere, the production repeated the great success it had attained in New York and was enthusiastically acclaimed by press and public—the New York drama critics awarded it the Critics Circle Prize as the best American musical of the season and John Chapman included the script in his publication "The Ten Best Plays of 1948."

Because "Brigadoon" is such an outstanding musical comedy the Civic Drama Guild of New York, producers of the National Company, were desirous of giving the opportunity of attending this attraction to as many people and cities as possible throughout the land. For this purpose, the present national company of "Brigadoon" was organized and booked into those communities who are off the beaten path of touring attractions. At the same time, if receiving community support as anticipated, "Brigadoon" will pave the way for future theatrical attractions, both musical and dramatic.

Every member of Rotary Club has tickets for this hit musical, the proceeds of which will go to the Club's Youth Program. Any one desiring tickets may also call 1351 or at either O'Reilly stationery stores.

The Citizens Public Expenditure Survey, Inc., a private taxpayer group, and the Commerce and Industry Association of New York city probably will spearhead the economy forces.

Mayor Vincent R. Impellitteri of New York city will not wait for the public hearing to speak his piece.

He's coming to Albany Monday for a private conference with GOP legislative leaders to appeal for state help to solve the city's growing fiscal problems.

Impellitteri has asked that the state provide an additional $63,800,000 in state aid for New York city.

Most observers agreed there was virtually no chance the city would get more than the $270,700,000 in state aid provided for the metropolis in Dewey's budget.

However, there were vague reports that some GOP quarters were inclined to favor some additional aid for the city "for political reasons."

Small Patrols Are Active

Dozens of small patrol actions erupted all along the front, particularly in Mundung valley near Heartbreak Ridge in the eastern mountains. Three fights lasting from half an hour to an hour broke out there.

Far over northwest Korea Capt. Freeland K. Mathews shot down a Russian-type jet in MIG alley. It streaked down in flames and exploded when it hit the ground.

Mathews was one of the 18 F-86 Sabre jet pilots who tangled with 12 MIGs in one of the unusual battles where American jets outnumbered the Reds.

Allied bombers and fighter-bombers blasted a supply center near the besieged east coast port of Wonsan into an exploding inferno Wednesday. Returning pilots said towering smoke clouds hid the supply complex and explosions ripped across it.

A North Korean communique, broadcast by the Red radio at Pyongyang, said three allied planes were shot down by anti-aircraft guns.

Vets Are Reminded About Application For GI Studies

Former GI Bill veteran-trainees, who returned to active military duty are reminded that they have little time to lose in case they want to resume their GI studies after discharge.

An announcement to this effect was stressed today by Donald G. Moore, state veteran counselor and Howard C. Shurter, director of the Ulster County Veterans' Service Agency, 32 Main street.

Moore pointed out that under VA regulations, they must resume their training within a reasonable period after their release from active duty. That reasonable period, he said, will be based on the circumstances of each veteran's case, and will depend on the kind of training he is taking and a number of other factors.

These regulations apply to veterans affected by the July 25, '51, cut-off date for entering training, who had previously been in training under the GI Bill, but who were unable to be enrolled at that time because of re-entrance into military service.

their training plans early, rather than wait for the last minute. This way, Moore said, they may avoid the disappointment of missing out altogether.

Director Shurter also reminded veterans of three requirements that must be met in order to take post-cut-off date training after military service:

1. Conduct and progress of their previous GI Bill courses must have been satisfactory.

2. The amount of training they may get after discharge will be limited by their remaining GI Bill entitlement.

3. And their courses may not extend beyond the wind-up of the GI Bill program on July 25, 1956.

According to the law, the July, 1951, cut-off date applied to World War 2 veterans discharged before July 25, 1947. For those few discharged afterwards, the cut-off date is four years from their date of discharge.
